

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE.

This volume is a continuation of the Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives, and the Records of the President and Council, on the plan outlined in the preface to Vol. XX. These three political years exhibit the workings of the state government in the midst of the experiment undertaken by the adoption of the constitution of 1784. At the same time, moreover, the relations of the state with other states and the Federal union had been radically changed by the adoption of the Federal constitution, and that epoch is included in the period covered by this volume. The student of constitutional history will find in these pages the official account of all the proceedings of the General Court touching the election of delegates, provision for a convention to consider the proposed Federal constitution, and the assumption of the various privileges and duties of statehood under the new compact. The journal of the convention which ratified the proposed Federal constitution has been published in Vol. X of this series, and illustrative notes and citations on the subject are given in the appendix to Vol. XX.

The extensive jurisdiction assumed and exercised by the General Court in the treatment of matters now regarded as of strictly judicial cognizance, or assigned to the courts of law and equity from considerations of convenience and public policy, is amply disclosed in these records of legislative proceedings. The General Court often undertook to reverse and vacate judgments of the courts of law by entertaining petitions for new trials, and exercising judicial functions in other ways, and they may be regarded, in a measure, as an indication of a lack of confidence in the courts or as the passing vestiges of that legislative supervision long exercised over the courts, as well as over the executive department. It was practically unlimited by the constitution of 1776, and not effectually controlled by that of 1784. Actual experience in the workings of government at this period brought the attention of the people to the faults to be remedied, and compelled an early attempt to obviate some of the more conspicuous defects in the organic law. Measures to this end were formulated soon after the adjustment of the state's new relations to the Federal union.

Thus while the practice and usages of legislation for a long time invited or tolerated the presentation of a multitude of private matters as subjects of action, and much of the record is occupied by that class of business, it should not be assumed that serious and far-reaching measures of general concern were a less important feature of the legislation of that day. The currency, the public debt, inter-state affairs, the revision of the laws, the ever-present Masonian controversy, and the spirit of rebellion which was rife in 1787, were among the subjects of administration and legislation which demanded the highest order of statesmanship, and which give the official narrative a peculiar interest and value.

Many of the public men of the Revolutionary period were now enjoying a distinction acquired in earlier civil and military service. It was to be expected that such services would entitle them to the rewards of office in times of peace. Age and natural partiality to the traditions and methods acquired from earlier conditions, made these men conservative. Aggressive measures of reform would most readily emanate from another element. Other and younger men were also becoming participants in the affairs of government. They had no undue reverence for the old order of things, civil or ecclesiastical. Some of them attained the highest places in public life, and won enduring fame as statesmen and jurists.

William Plumer first appeared in the General Court as a representative in 1785, and Jeremiah Smith in 1788. Both passed through a legislative tutelage which equipped them for more distinguished, but perhaps no more useful efforts, in the national Congress. They were both leaders at the outset. They became the foremost advocates of constitutional reform, and so effectually did they teach the lessons gathered from their own familiarity with the workings of the new government, that they are justly credited with the principal responsibility for the important amendments to the constitution which were, soon after their advent into public life, secured through the convention of 1791 and 1792. The Life of Plumer, chapters 2 and 3, the Life of Smith, chapter 3, and the Life of John Sullivan, pages 199 to 244, may be read with especial advantage in connection with an examination of the records here given. Other authorities which have reference to men and measures of the same period are cited in notes accompanying the text.

The selections from Governor Plumer's books of biography, which will be found in the appendix, are published with a two-fold purpose — to call the attention of the public to that remarkable product of Mr. Plumer's well directed industry, which is contained in five manuscript volumes now in the custody of the New Hampshire Historical Society; and to give those who might be disposed to pursue such lines of investigation an introduction to the principal actors in the affairs of the period under review, as they are pictured by a competent and critical contemporary.

The Record of the President and Council was never before printed. In ascertaining the practical construction of the constitution as given by the members of this body, many of whom were members of the convention which formulated the instrument, this part of the work will, it is hoped, be found especially useful. The re-examination of the respective rights and duties of the Governor and the Council, which recent events in several states have occasioned, is facilitated and made practicable so far as the archives of this state are required, to an extent not before possible.

The correspondence and legislative acts relating to New Hampshire and the Federal constitution, as gathered from various sources, are added for preservation and convenient reference.

The arrangement of the records in the body of this volume is the same as that adopted in Vol. XX. Similar official tables, marginal notes, and indexes have also been prepared. The next volume will be a continuation of the legislative journals and executive records to the close of the period which began with the constitution of 1784 and ended with the commencement of the first political year under the same constitution as amended in 1791-92. The further prosecution of the work in that direction is not at present contemplated.

Courtesies have been most cordially extended by the officials designated in former notes, and increased obligations incurred. The renewal of our acknowledgments of those favors is a duty and a pleasure.

DELEGATES TO CONGRESS.

To serve for one year from the first Monday in November, 1787.

Names.	Residence.	Date of Election.
JOHN PICKERING,	Portsmouth,	June 23, 1787.
NICHOLAS GILMAN,	Exeter.	June 23, 1787.
BENJAMIN WEST,	Charlestown,	June 26, 1787.

DELEGATES FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE IN ACTUAL ATTENDANCE AT CONGRESS.

1788.

 PAINE WINGATE, Stratham.

The House, June 21, named John Langdon, John Pickering, Nicholas Gilman, and Benjamin Bellows, to be delegates to Congress. The Senate, June 23, concurred in the appointment of Mr. Pickering and Mr. Gilman, but took no action on the appointment of Mr. Langdon. They non-concurred at the same time in the appointment of Mr. Bellows on information that it was not probable that he would accept the trust. The House, June 25, named Benjamin West, and the Senate, June 26, concurred. Benjamin West having declined the trust, the House, September 29, named Paine Wingate, instead, and the Senate, on the same day, concurred. Osborne's N. H. Register, for 1788, names Mr. Langdon as one of the delegates. It does not appear that he was in attendance in Congress, in 1788, and whether the Senate record is imperfect in not showing a concurrence which was actually given or whether Mr. Langdon, by a declination which is not recorded, prevented the further use of his name in that connection we cannot now state.

* A protest was then handed in which was in the following words — We protest against the Bill, intituled an Act in addition to an Act intituled an Act to establish certain Impost duties — * 13-310

1st Because the principle on which the Bill is founded we conceive is inequitable and that its consequences will be ruinous to the credit of the State —

2<sup>d</sup> Because the Bill were it Enacted would be oppressive to Individuals, injurious to commerce, and destructive of the rights of trial by jury —

3<sup>d</sup> Because the Bill makes the Treasurer a Chancellor and gives him certain judiciary powers — while the Constitution says — all judicial Officers shall be appointed by the President & Council —

4th Because the Bill is repugnant to the Tender Act just past this House and repeals certain Laws of the late province giving certain powers of Chancery to the Courts of Law within this State —

5th Because the Bill is in its nature and operation, retrospective —

1 The printed journal gives but 27 yeas.

6th Because the Bill doth not relate to any articles imported by Land into this State —

An Act to quiet all bona fide purchasers of Lands between a line crossing over lands upon a straight course from the North-East extremity of the east line of Masons Patent being sixty miles from the Sea on a straight line, and running to the extremity of the Western side line of said Patent at Sixty miles distance from the sea on a straight line, and the curve line (so called) claimed by the persons calling themselves the Masonian Proprietors at the head line of Said patent — was read a third time & passed to be enacted — Sent up by Mr Page & Mr Copland

Upon the passing of which Bill a protest was given in, and was in the following words — We the Subscribers beg leave to enter our protest against the passing the Bill, entitled an Act to quiet all bona fide purchasers of Lands between a line crossing over Lands upon a straight course from the North extremity of the East line of Masons Patent being sixty miles from the Sea on a straight line and running to the extremity of the Western side line of said Patent &c. for the following reasons (viz<sup>t</sup>)

1st Because the first paragraph in the Bill gives no Security to any Grantees therein mentioned but seems to be calculated to quiet fears which the Bill has a direct tendency to excite, while many other grantees of Lands within said Lines entitled to the benefit of the bill were any intended were entirely omitted.

2<sup>d</sup> Because the second paragraph of said Bill were it Enacted would be a great encouragement to trespassers and intruders as it gives them a preference to the honest peaceable Subjects of the state — while it would indemnify them against all damages which otherwise might be recovered of them for trespassing on private property — and because the said Second paragraph takes it for granted that the lands therein mentioned belong to the State * and is in effect and consequence a preadjudica- * 13-316 tion of the title to the Same in favour of the State, while the State sits Sole judge and arbiter in its own cause.

3<sup>d</sup> We protest against the third paragraph as it's obvious tendency must be, to deprive the Subject of many forcible arguments in Support of his claim, alters the real present circumstances of his cause, much to his prejudice, while it creates a prepossession in favour of the State and looks like preparing a jury for the decision of the cause — in accord the Subscribers protest against the Bill in gross, the genius and tendency of which they conceive derogatory to the Legislature and Subversive of the Constitutional rights of the Subject —

The Committee and Surveyors appointed to run the lines and ascertain the extent and boundaries of Masons Patent so called, agreeable to a vote of the General Court passed in the month of June 1787, reported in the following words—That we began at the entrance of Piscataqua Harbour and run the Several Courses and distances as marked on the plan herewith exhibited making Sixty miles on a straight line to end at a large beech Tree which we marked with the Initial Letters of Names and with the date of the year being 1787, and also spotted said Tree in Several places and also spotted several trees round it which Beach * Tree stands on the Province line (so called) * 13-387 bearing North six degrees west from the Entrance of said Harbour —

We then proceeded to the mouth of Merrimac river and run the Several Courses and distances as marked in said plan until we made Sixty miles straight as aforesaid ending in a Marsh in Lot number eighteen in Rindge on the Province line (so called) here we fixed a large stake in the ground and laid Stones round it and Spotted several white pine trees on the edge of the upland near the said Stake — the corner from the mouth of Merrimac river to this Monument being west about one degree notherly — We then proceeded to run the head line having found the Course to be North thirty nine degrees East from this Extremity to the bound on the North line; this line we Spotted very thick all the way where there were trees, and where there were not any thing to mark, noted buildings &c as we passed — Ponds rivers &c we also have noted on the plan — this line crosses Merrimac river in Concord on Sewalls Falls, from thence near Leavit Clough's and near the dividing line between Canterbury & Loudon crossing a pond, from thence to Gilmantown about Seventy rods below Col<sup>o</sup> Badgers house, from thence across a Small part or corner of the Gore over Rattle snake Island in Winnepeseochee pond to Wolfborough about two rods north of Ebenezer Horn's Barn — and other places as noted on the plan — All the above lines and corners were run by the compass without any allowance for variation — and every proper allowance for Mountains hills and broken ground was made in measuring the two side lines to make them horizontal measure —

 County of Hillsborough amount to 2804, no one person being elected, the four highest numbers are, for Joshua Bailey Esq<sup>r</sup> 579, for Robert Wallace Esq 535 for Robert Means 442 and for Ebenezer Webster 407. — That the number of votes returned for Senators for the County of Cheshire amount to 1465, no one person being elected the four highest numbers are, for John Bellows Esq 343, for Amos Shepard Esq 343, for John Hubbard Esq 257 and for Moses Chase 234. That the whole number of votes returned for Senators for the County of Grafton amount to 555, no one person having a majority, the two highest numbers are, for Francis Worcester Esq 189, and for Elisha Payne Esq 173. —

We also certify that the votes from Swanzey was at the time of counting the votes for Senators crowded into the files by mistake and has been since found in the paper inclosing the votes from Stoddard, but was not counted at the time: We find that John Bellows Esq had thirty nine votes for a Senator in that town, which make the number of votes for him 382; The other votes from Swanzey are 37 for Reuben Alexander, 4 for Capt. Josiah Richardson, & two for Calvin Frink, neither of whom had before any votes for them as Senators for the County of Cheshire;

We also find by the votes from Winchester delivered * 2 P. & C.—50 to the Secretary since the counting of votes for Senators, that Col John Bellows had in that Town, 27 votes for a Senator which would have made a majority of votes in his favor if seasonably handed in; That Reuben Alexander Esq had in that Town 30 votes for a Senator in that County — We also find a number of votes have since been handed in from several Towns in the County of Rockingham, which if seasonably sent would not have made any alteration in the choice of Senators, the votes are as follows, viz:

for Joseph Gilman Esq Ten,
 Peter Green Esq Twenty,
 John Bell Esq Twenty,
 Christo Toppon, Esq, Twenty,
 John Eastman Esq Ten,
 Col John M<sup>c</sup>Clary Twenty nine,
 Richard Bartlett Esq nine,
 Edmund Morse One.

We also find by the votes from New Durham and New Durham Gore sent in since counting the votes for Senators, that Col Ebenezer Smith had fifty seven votes for a Senator for the County of Strafford, Col. John Waldron had 34, & Joshua Wingate had one and Timothy Emerson had Twenty three — We also find by votes since sent in, that Moses Dow Esq had 62 votes for a Senator for the County of Grafton.—

We also find by the votes returned June 4th 1788 * 2 P. & C.—51 that Col John Bellows had 29 votes, Col * Amos Shepard 17 Daniel Grout 7 and Tho<sup>s</sup> Pennyman Esq 5 votes for a Senator for the County of Cheshire, that Francis Worcester Esq had 33 votes for a Senator for the County of Grafton and that Elisha Payne Esq had 9, Col Charles Johnston 4, & Bezaleel Woodward Esq 1 for a Senator for said County

<sup>3</sup> No sketch of Col. John Waldron, of Dover, N. H., would be complete without some recognition of the fact that there were two families of that surname in Dover in the seventeenth century, of entirely distinct origin.

They were not known to be related to each other, and the earlier generations of neither family claimed relationship. Rev. Dr. Quint has written of these two families (that of old Major Richard Waldron and of John Waldron — contemporaries) as follows. viz.:

"If there was any connection between these families (Richard and John of Dover in 1689), it was on the other side of the ocean.

County of Hillsboro'. { ROBERT WALLACE,<sup>4</sup> Henniker.
EBENEZER WEBSTER, Salisbury.

County of Cheshire. { AMOS SHEPHARD, Alstead.
MOSES CHASE, Cornish.

County of Grafton. { FRANCIS WORCESTER,<sup>5</sup> Plymouth.

"Besides, the Major's name was Walderne, not Waldron, and Walderne was the name of his English ancestry.

"Their social position here [in Dover] was very different.

"Richard was speaker of the Massachusetts House, Major-General, President of the Province of New Hampshire.

"John was 'Master' Heard's chore-boy.

"Richard had great landed possessions; John began without a rod.

"But, in successive generations the great possessions of Richard dwindled to nothing, while John and John's heirs came to own thousands of acres.

"The descendants of Richard had little influence in Dover when John's grandson swept the town at every election.

"And, strangest of all, the Major's own son abandoned his hereditary surname, and adopted and gave to his descendants, the patronymic of the kidnapped chore-boy."

John Waldron was picked up in the streets of an English seaport while a boy in an "unfair manner" by Capt. John Heard, a ship captain of Dover, N. H., taken to America, brought to Dover, and kept by said Heard as a chore-boy at his Garrison House at [now] Garrison Hill, Dover, N. H.

Heard died in 1688, Jan. 19 (the same year Major Richard Walderne was massacred), and he in his will calls John Waldron "my prentice" and made him a legacy.

John 1 Waldron, on Aug. 29, 1698, married Mary (Ham) Horne, a widow of Dover. She was daughter of John Ham of Dover, the immigrant ancestor of Dr. John R. Ham; her first husband, Wm. Horne, having died shortly after their marriage. John died, 1740, in Dover.

They had (among other children) Richard 2 Waldron.

Richard 2 (John 1) Waldron married (1) Hannah Smith of Durham and (2) Elizabeth —, who survived him. His will was dated 28 Aug., 1771; proved 29 Jan., 1772. He had (among others) John 3 Waldron.

This John 3 (Richard 2, John 1) Waldron is the State Senator, named in the text, and the grandson who (as Dr. Quint says above) "swept the town at every election."

John 3 (Richard 2, John 1) Waldron, born near 1740, was a farmer, justice of the peace, etc. He raised a company in Dover and led it to Cambridge in the Revolutionary War. While at Cambridge the Connecticut troops, going home, left Washington to appeal to New Hampshire patriotism; and the Captain (John W.) came home to Dover and raised seven hundred men in four days, and went back as Colonel. The death of his wife and the absolute need of his young children made him retire early from the service, but his patriotism was unbounded. Probably Dover never had a more popular citizen. He was in the Provincial Legislature in 1774, and the Revolutionary Convention at Exeter in 1775; Representative in 1782, '83, '85, '86, and '88, 1797, '98, 1801, '2, '3, and '15. He was in the State Senate in 1788, 1790, '91, '92, and 1803, '4, '5, '6.

At a single election in Dover he was chosen moderator, lot layer, highway surveyor, overseer of the poor, representative and senator. He was especially famous as moderator. His clear and powerful voice, his energy and decision, made him successful. The records show him to have been moderator for thirty-eight regular town meetings for elections, and eight special meetings. His intense party feelings were not concealed. At one election in declaring the vote he added in a stentorian voice, stating the numbers, "so many for England, and so many for America." He was four times married. Col. John was baptized 15 Sept., 1765; and received, with his wife Joanna, as a member of First Church (Cong.), Dover, 12 June, 1768. He had three sons and four daughters. He died 31 Aug., 1827, while on a visit to his son Dr. Timothy W. Waldron, in Bath, Maine, and he was there buried.

The editor is indebted to John R. Ham, M. D., for the foregoing biographical matter relative to Senator Waldron.

4 Hon. Robert Wallace was a wealthy and influential citizen who was revered in Henniker and highly esteemed everywhere. His mother was born at sea in the voyage to this country in 1720. Her second husband, James Clark, was an ancestor of Horace Greeley. Besides serving several terms in the Senate and Council, Robert Wallace was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas.—L. W. Cogswell, History of Henniker, passim.

5 Francis Worcester was a representative man in an interesting chapter of events in our political history. Grafton county had been so recently made a political unit, when the dissolution of the provincial government occurred that the people of its eastern and western parts had not become fully accustomed to the new adjustment of county relations, and their ideas of government were discordant. It was in civil affairs rather than in the military that Mr. Worcester was conspicuous in the later part of the revolutionary period. The situation in this part of the state was a source of constant embarrassment to those who were the responsible agents of the revolutionary government of New Hampshire. The strong

The Senators elected by the people were :

John Pickering, Pierse Long, Portsmouth, Christopher Toppan, Hampton, John Bell, Londonderry, Joshua Wentworth, Portsmouth, for the County of Rockingham.

Ebenezer Smith, Meredith, for the County of Strafford.

The Senate and House in joint convention filled the vacancies on the fifth day of June, by making choice of the following named candidates :

John Waldron, Dover, for the County of Strafford.

Robert Wallace, Henniker, Ebenezer Webster, Salisbury, for the County of Hillsborough.

Amos Shephard, Alstead, Moses Chase, Cornish, for the County of Cheshire.

and devoted nucleus of their political support in the eastern part of the county was able to coöperate with one of the factions in the western towns, bringing about a gradual extension of a sentiment of state pride and eventually a restoration of the whole county to its proper allegiance. This was accomplished in the last four years of the revolutionary period, in which Mr. Worcester and Col. Charles Johnston alternated as the Councillor for Grafton county, representing the New Hampshire party, which was strenuously opposed by an influential body of the people under the lead of Col. Elisha Payne, Professor Bezaleel Woodward, and Gen. Israel Morey. See Biography of John Hurd, by W. F. Whitcher, Proceedings of the Grafton and Coös Bar Association, Vol. 1, p. 492.

The House November 11, 1788, made choice of John Langdon for a Senator in the Congress of the United States, yeas 60, nays 3. November 12 the Senate concurred.

The House November 12 made choice of Nathaniel Peabody<sup>1</sup> for a Senator in the Congress of the United States, yeas 40, nays 36.

The Senate on the same day refused concurrence<sup>2</sup> in the choice of Nathaniel Peabody, yeas 2, nays 8.

The Senate the same day made choice of Josiah Bartlett for a Senator in the Congress of the United States and the House concurred; 61 yeas, 16 nays.

The Secretary was instructed to notify the Senators of their election and to desire them to give answer at the next session.

Dr. Bartlett declined the appointment.<sup>3</sup>

At the next session, on the first day of January, the House made choice of Paine Wingate for Senator, yeas 58, nays 26, and on the third day of January the Senate concurred.

In the classification of Senators in Congress under Article 1, section 3, clause 2 of the Constitution, which was made by lot, Senator Langdon was assigned to the third class, which gave him a term of six years, and Senator Wingate to the second class, giving him a term of four years. Senator Langdon was the first President of the Senate, and, as the inauguration of the Vice-President did not occur till April 21, as to the interval from the organization of the Senate till that date, the remark that "he was the first acting President of the United States" is of course true.

The succession of United States Senators from this State under classes two and three is given in the New Hampshire Manual for the General Court for 1891, p. 165. The name of Henry Hubbard, however, should be read for that of Harry Hibbard on p. 166. The Manuals of the United States Senate contain similar tables of senatorial succession for all the states.

The first popular election for Representatives for New Hampshire in the Congress of the United States under the Constitution, took place on the third Monday in December, 1788, under the Act of November 8, 1788.

It appears by the report of a committee of the House, made January 2, 1789, that there was no choice, Hon. Benjamin West, of Charlestown, Hon. Samuel Livermore, of Holderness, Hon. Paine Wingate, of Stratham, Hon. Abiel Foster, of Canterbury, Hon. John Sullivan, of Durham, and Hon. Nicholas Gilman, of Exeter, having the highest number of votes, in the order named.

A second election occurred on the first Monday in February, 1789, and February 21, 1789, the President and Council having examined the return of votes, found that Hon. Benjamin West, Hon. Samuel Livermore, and Hon. Nicholas Gilman had been chosen. Hon. Abiel Foster, Hon. John Sullivan, and Hon. Paine Wingate stood next in the poll in the order named. Mr. Wingate had meantime been chosen United States Senator, and probably for that reason received but a trifling vote for Representative.

Mr. West declined his election, as he had his appointment as Attorney-General and many other important offices.

A new election took place June 22, 1789, and at this, the third trial, the delegation was completed by the choice of Hon. Abiel Foster.

These elections were by a general vote of the state at large, and this method was continued until the December session of the General Court, in 1824, when the State was divided into six districts.

In the November election, just previous to this enactment, congressmen had been elected on a general ticket. None were elected in March, 1825. The act of December 16, 1824, creating and defining congressional districts was repealed by act of July 2, 1825. There is a citation of these acts in the Index to New Hampshire Laws, p. 122, which does not suggest the early fate of this legislation. The act of July 2 was nothing but a repealing act drawn in very concise terms. It was again the subject of legislation in 1846, when the State was divided into four districts by the act of July 2, and congressmen were first elected under that arrangement in March, 1847. The district system has ever since prevailed. Special acts are scattered along the record providing for elections in November, so that the members would be chosen in time for sessions beginning in March. Usually, however, the congressional elections took place in March.

The New Hampshire Register for 1860, p. 29, gives summaries of the votes at all the congressional elections in the State to that year.

The History of the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Inauguration of the Federal Government at New York, which is now in press, will give biographical sketches of the New Hampshire members with those of other States.

See Hon. Charles H. Atherton's estimate of Judge Livermore, in Memoir of Claggett, 3 N. H. Hist. Soc. Collections, 37. Compare Brewster's Rambles, 143, and Life of Plumer, 150.

An act of the Continental Congress provided that presidential electors should be chosen on the first Wednesday in January, 1789, and that the electors should choose a president on the first Wednesday in February, and that the two Houses of Congress should assemble in New York on the first Wednesday in March. The old Congress was kept alive with difficulty during the winter of 1788-89. Sometimes less than half a dozen members were in the city and after the first of January there was never a quorum present.

I am Sensible of the importance of the Station in which I am placed and shall endeavour by your assistance and Support to render every service in my power that may contribute to the happiness and prosperity of the State —

The public papers as they come to my hands shall from time to time be laid before you and I shall always be happy in making any Communications the publick good may require —

The perplexed Situation of our public affairs in general is so apparent to every person of reflection that the bare mentioning of it is sufficient to call forth the Exertions of every good citizen in the Support of our Country — The deranged State of our finances the almost annihilation of our commerce are objects truly important, but I look forward with pleasure to the time which I trust is not far distant when by the blessing of divine providence we shall be relieved in a great measure from those and many other embarrassments by the adoption of the proposed federal constitution, this will give us a government equal to the great national Objects by which only they can be regulated and by which only we can ever reasonably expect to enjoy peace liberty and Safety —

Gentlemen It is needless for me to take up your time
* in pointing out any particular matter, your wisdom * 13-431 will direct in the necessary business of the State which will naturally come before you in the course of the present Session which will probably be short —

I shall be always ready to assist in and concur with every measure that may be thought just and proper to promote the public welfare and general tranquility of the State — John Langdon

May it please your Excellency

Your Election by the suffrages of a free people to the Office of first Magistrate of this state as it implies an approbation of your past and a confidence in your future administration cannot fail to excite the most pleasing emotions upon this auspicious occasion —

To see the chair of State filled by one whose patriotism and ardent zeal for the Interest of his Country have been long tried and approved both in peace and war afford no small pleasure to a Sensible and grateful people —

Realizing the importance of the station in which your Excellency is placed we should be wanting in duty to our Constituents and ourselves did we not give you every assistance in our power in the faithful discharge of the duties of your exalted Station —

We have long viewed with anxious concern the embarrassed

Situation of our public affairs the deranged condition of our finances and the melancholly state of our declining commerce, and your Excellency may rely that no constitutional exertions shall be wanting on our part to remove those embarrassments, arrange our finances and cheer the drooping Spirit of Commerce— Signed John Waldron for the Committee, which report being read and considered voted that it be received and accepted—upon which vote the yeas and nays were called and are as follows viz.

The Committee to enquire and report what lands belong to this State and what method shall be taken for the recovery and granting thereof &c Reported that there are large tracts of Land within the bounds of the State of New Hampshire yet ungranted which if Surveyed and laid out into Townships of six miles Square as nearly as the land will admit might be disposed of for the great benefit of the State and therefore they are of Opinion that a Committee should be appointed to Survey and lay out the Same into Townships as aforesaid and return a plan thereof into the Secretarys Office as soon as may be — Your Committee also find that there are many Townships and tracts of Land granted upon certain conditions which have * not been fulfilled, And * 13-555 Sundry other Townships and tracts of Land which have been regranted upon a Supposition that a forfeiture was incurred by the nonperformance of the Conditions whereby the end and design of the grants have been defeated and the State thereby greatly injured. They are therefore of Opinion that a Special Court be appointed consisting of five persons vested with proper authority to hear try & determine in an equitable manner all complaints which may be exhibited to them respecting any delinquencies whereby a forfeiture may be alledged to have been incurred — And that in all cases where a defence is made the enquiry shall be by a Jury, and in cases of default the Court shall render judgment as the Law directs in other cases — Signed Ebenz<sup>r</sup> Smith for the Committee which report having been read and considered voted that it be received and accepted — Sent up by M<sup>r</sup> Chamberlain

The Committee on the Petition of Israel Morey Esq<sup>r</sup> Reported that they have carefully examined the evidences produced by the Memorialist and are of Opinion that the Charges and allegations exhibited against David Webster Esq<sup>r</sup> Sherri<sup>f</sup> of the County of Grafton for misconduct and maladministration in his said Office are so far Supported as to merit the further attention of the Honb<sup>l</sup> House of Representatives whose duty it is as the grant inquest of the state to enquire into the conduct of all public officers —

Your Committee having an opportunity of only hearing the evidence against the said Webster are of Opinion that previous to any impeachment the said Webster have an opportunity to answer before the Honb<sup>l</sup> House to the Several charges alledged against him —

* Your committee conceiving it to be the right of the * 13-558 person accused in all cases to have the charges & allegations fully and plainly described that he may be prepared to make his defence would offer the following as the most material charges against the said Webster for misconduct & mal-administration in Office which have come to the knowledge of your committee —

1st That the said Webster ever since the year 1784 hath neglected Seasonably to return the votes for a President and Senators in said County of Grafton and especially the votes for the year 1787 by means whereof the good people of said County have been deprived of their Suffrages for the most important offices in the State —

2<sup>d</sup> That the said Webster in the Execution of his Office hath in a variety of instances greatly injured the good Subjects of this State by appointing appraisers who he knew to be under the undue influence of one of the parties by refusing to give copies of precepts which he was executing when requested by the parties who had a right to the same — by making irregular illegal and absurd returns on Executions and other precepts to the great injury of the parties concerned — by extorting from debtors illegal and exorbitant fees — by appointing and continuing under him deputies who he well knew through want of ability honesty and integrity were unqualified for the important duties of that office — by permitting prisoners to escape and go at large and by retaining in his hand monies belonging to the creditors long after he has collected them

3<sup>d</sup> That the said Webster in October 1785 did pretend to constitute a Goal other than the common prison and did therein take bonds which by Law ought to have been taken in the common prison with design to defraud James Macgregore Esq<sup>r</sup> of a judgment obtained against John House Esq<sup>r</sup> —

* 13-559 * 4th That the said Webster officiating in his said Office in a cause of forcible entry and detainer between the late Jonathan Moulton Esq<sup>r</sup> and John Patterson Esq<sup>r</sup> did corruptly agree with one of the parties to receive large extra fees for packing a Jury to effect a certain purpose —

5th That the said Webster on the 20th day of September last did cause the personal property of Israel Morey Esq<sup>r</sup> to be taken by one of the said Websters sons and held for the space of thirteen days under the pretence of the levy of an execution thereon when in fact neither the said Webster nor his son at that time had any such Execution —

6th That the said Webster on the 21st 22<sup>d</sup> and 23<sup>d</sup> days of December A D — 1784 did levy three executions in favour of Jonathan and Benning Moulton against the said Morey on the said Moreys land in Orford, that the said Webster in levying the Same did against the remonstrance of the said Morey appoint an appraiser who was under the undue influence of the said Moulton and not indifferent between the said parties — by means whereof the said Moreys lands were appraised at a much less sum than their real value and that the said Webster did take and extort from the said Morey the Sum of twenty three pounds eighteen shillings and two pence more than his legal fees for said Services —

7th That the said Webster on the 14th day of December A D, 1784 then being from the nature of his office keeper of the Goal in said County of Grafton when legally summoned before two

Justices of the Peace in said County and ordered to recognize for his appearance on a future day as by Law he ought to have done, refused to obey the order of the said Justices knowing that he could not be committed for his said refusal and contempt—

8th That the said Webster on the fourteenth day of December 1786 in levying two Executions in favour of the late Jonathan Moulton Esq<sup>r</sup> against Bradstreet Spafford * of * 13-560 Piermont did take and extort from the said debtor a large Sum more than the legal fees for the Service of said Executions—

9th That the said Webster having an Execution put into his hands to Serve against Samuel Atkinson in favour of Gordan Hutchens and orders to levy the Same on the lands of said Atkinson in Rumney did levy the Same without notifying the debtor or giving him an opportunity of choosing an Appraiser as by Law he ought to have done

relative to issuing a Proclamation for a general Fast — Whereupon the Council advise, that His Excellency cause the following proclamation for a general Fast throughout the State on the 2<sup>d</sup> of April next agreeably to a vote of Court, to be printed & sent to the several Towns in this State —

By His Excellency
John Pickering Esquire —
President of the State of New Hampshire —
A Proclamation for a general Fast

As the Ordinances of Heaven are in the hands of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe and his smiles, or frowns, commonly suited * to the moral character of a * 2 P. & C.-68 people or nation; as the seasons are advancing, when we are more immediately led to consider our dependence on infinite Goodness for a favourable seed time, and a plentiful harvest, and as we are not only dependent, but guilty creatures, a sincere repentance for our multiplied iniquities, expressed, by humiliation, fasting and prayer, appears peculiarly proper. The Legislature of this State have therefore appointed Thursday the second day of April next to be observed as a day of general humiliation, fasting and prayer throughout this State —

In pursuance of which appointment, I do, by and with advice of Council, issue this proclamation, earnestly recommending to religious Societies of every denomination to assemble on that day, and with humble and contrite hearts — to implore the pardon of our numerous & aggravated transgressions of the divine law; to deprcate his deserved wrath; to supplicate his unmerited favours, the continuance of blessings enjoyed, and the bestowment of needed mercies: That God would inspire our Rulers with wisdom, integrity and patriotism and the people with a due sense of subjection & obedience to rightful authority — take the Federal Government under his holy Protection, and render it subservient to the * 2 P. & C.—69 best interest of the Union; that he * would order the revolving seasons in mercy and crown the ensuing year with plenty: prosper our trade fishery & manufactures; save us from foreign and intestine commotions and continue to be the God of our lives and the health of our countenance; that he would be pleased to smile upon our Seminaries of Literature: would endue his ministers with righteousness, replenish their hearts with his heavenly grace — succeed their labours of love and extend the peaceful kingdom of the Redeemer throughout the world —

All Servile labour & recreation are forbidden on said day.

Given at the Council Chamber at Exeter the twenty first day of Feb<sup>r</sup> in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred & eighty nine and in the thirteenth year of American Independence

State of New Hamp<sup>r</sup> } In Senate June 9th 1789

Whereas it appears that the sitting of the Inferior Court of Common pleas to be holden by Law at Dover on the * 13-635 third Tuesday of June instant will be inconvenient * to sundry persons who are Obliged to attend the General Court at this time —

Therefore be it Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened that the said Inferior Court of Common pleas be and hereby is adjourned to the first Tuesday of July next then to be holden at said Dover — And all writs and processes of every kind sustainable by said Court shall be returned, heard, tried and determined on said day in the same manner that they might by Law have been sustained, returned, heard tried and determined on the third Tuesday of June Instant — was read and concurred — Sent up by Mr Johnson

Two of the members of the Honb<sup>l</sup> Senate came down with the following message from his Excellency the President

Gentlemen of the Honb<sup>l</sup> Senate, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives —

Neither my own inclinations or the state of my health led me to expect the Honour of being called to the chair of Government the present year or even to hazard a wish of engaging in an Ocean far from being Smooth and pacific even in the best of times, but having long accustomed my self to obey with cheerfulness every call of my country — I have ventured once more to attempt performing the duties of an Arduous and important office with a firm reliance on your great experience Integrity and long, tried abilities in the political field and under a full perswasion that your kind and friendly assistance will never be wanting to Support me in discharging the duties of it. I have now Gentlemen to Intreat your acceptance of my most cordial thanks for the honour you have done me in this additional mark of your confidence and to assure you in your Seperate *branches * 13-636 and through you my fellow citizens at large that if faithfulness and integrity in discharging my duty will in any measure compensate for the want of those abilities which are more amply possessed by many others you shall have no reason to complain of your having misplaced the confidence with which you have honoured me —

Under the present Situation of our publick affairs it is almost impossible for me to say much upon the Subject — So many matters of national importance are in agitation before the federal Government and the event still remaining uncertain that it cannot in my opinion be prudent at this time to attempt some regulations which under other circumstances might be very beneficial and necessary —

The Militia Law has often been supposed to need Some amendments, and those respecting schools are thought to want very material alterations —

Some Acts that were put over from the last Session for consideration may now meet your further examination — the Judicial department is of so much importance to every individual that Surely nothing will be wanting on your part to pursue every possible measure for keeping up the due administration of Justice —

Permit me Gentlemen only to hint that unless some measures are taken to prevent, our fellow citizens may be subjected to duties by authority of Congress and at the same time to others collected by the Laws of the State and remain under this double burthen until the General Court is called to remedy the evil — The busy season of the year and the imprudence of attempting at this time to decide upon such measures as seem to wait the result of the federal Legislature will render it unnecessary to * 13-637 *protract the present Session for any considerable length of time —

You may rest assured Gentlemen that on my part nothing shall be wanting to assist you in those measures which you shall deem necessary to promote the welfare of our common country —

Given at the Council Chamber

May it please your Excellency

We the Senate and House of Representatives return your Excellency our Sincere thanks for your speech delivered to both houses — We congratulate you on your appointment to the Office of President an office which we are Sensible that nothing but the voice of your Country could have prevailed on your Excellency to accept, when you have Such powerful inducements to the contrary as your own inclinations and your ill state of health —

We assure you Sir that we will at all times readily co-operate with you in every measure that shall tend to the welfare of the people and the liberties of our Country

We felicitate your Excellency ourselves and our fellow citizens on the complete organization of the Federal Government — we agree with your Excellency that the Militia Law and those that respect Schools, the judicial department and Some bills that have been before the late Legislature but are not yet compleated are objects that merit our attention and that the duties imposed by Congress as soon as the result from the federal Legislature is known will require some precaution on our part to prevent our fellow citizens from being burthened with double duties of Impost and excise —

Permit us also to observe with your Excellency that we think it would be imprudence at this busy Season of the year to protract

the present Session in order to decide [on matters] of such magnitude some of which are not yet in that state of forwardness as properly to be taken up by the Legislature

And we beg your Excellency to be assured that from your * experience and past Services we have the greatest hopes & confidence that your Administration aided by the blessing of Almighty God will be honourable to yourself and happy for the people — * 13-643

THURSDAY DEC<sup>R</sup> 24th 1789

Met according to adjournment and there being a quorum Sufficient to transact business, information was given his Excellency and the Honb<sup>L</sup> Senate thereof

The Secretary came down and gave information that a quorum of the Senate were present and ready to proceed to business, also delivered the following message from his Excellency the President —

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives

It affords me the highest pleasure to meet you again in assembly to advise and consult with you upon the affairs of State at a time when so many important matters will fall under your consideration —

The public papers received since the last Session will be laid before you by the Secretary and among them you will find many Acts and Resolves of Congress which will require your deliberations; Among others it is of Consequence to consider of the proposal of the Federal Government to take under their care the Support and Maintenance of the Light House upon the conditions therein mentioned, and determine what territory and whether any shall be ceded to the United States also to consider of the expediency of passing a Law empowering the united States to confine their prisoners in the prisons of this State —

* 13-677 * Perhaps it may be thought worthy of your attention to take under consideration the present excise Act & determine how long it ought to be continued and whether the duties may not be lessened on account of the Impost now drawn by the United States —

It may be of importance to have an enquiry whether any of the existing Laws of this State militate with or are repugnant to the Laws of the United States or the Constitution of the federal Government —

The amendments proposed by Congress to the Constitution of the United states cannot fail of being considered & determined upon as early as the nature of the business before you will admit — Some other matters of Importance will from time to time as they may be in readiness be communicated by private messages —

This being the Season for granting the Supplies of the present year, that object cannot pass unnoticed —

Gentlemen I recommend to you unanimity and dispatch and beg leave to assure you that I shall be very happy in joining with you to promote and carry into execution all those measures which may tend to advance the good of our common country —

1st. Because we apprehend it to be more consonant to the dignity and wisdom of this House, and more consistent with our public trust, fairly to meet and decide a constitutional question, than to put it over to a period when the present House will not have it in their power to determine it; and when many evil consequences resulting from unconstitutional proceedings that are now dreaded, will have then taken place.

2d. Because we find ourselves called on by our duty, rather than inclination at this present time, to declare in the most unequivocal terms, that we consider the two offices held by his Excellency, namely, that of President of this state, and District Judge of the Federal Court, to be incompatible, inconsistent with, and subversive of our happy constitution which we wish to transmit from our hands pure and unsullied. To exculpate ourselves from being accessory to measures which might have been prevented, we think it our duty solemnly to protest against them; especially against the dangerous precedent of one person holding the aforesaid offices; being at the same time a legislator in New-Hampshire, and Judge of the Federal Court under the authority of the United States; where as Judge, he may explain and interpret laws, which as legislator he assisted to make, and as an executive officer was to carry into effect;—which mixed authority, we conceive, tends directly to a consolidation of both governments; to blend powers that should be separate, to create diffidence and distrust in the minds of the people, when unanimity and confidence in the government are absolutely necessary.

APPENDIX.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

OF SEVERAL PERSONS PARTICIPATING IN THE GOVERNMENT OF
NEW HAMPSHIRE IN THE PERIOD FROM 1784 TO 1793, COPIED FROM THE MANUSCRIPT OF WILLIAM
PLUMER, BY PERMISSION OF THE NEW HAMPSHIRE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

JOSEPH BADGER

Was, I think, a native of Massachusetts, but one of the first settlers of Gilmanton, New Hampshire, where he spent the remainder of his days. He did much in fostering and supporting the early settlers in that town, and thro' life was distinguished as an eminently useful townsman.

He was for many years town clerk, selectman, and representative. On the 20th March, 1768, he was appointed the first justice who lived in Gilmanton; and, after the Revolution, justice of the quorum thro' the state, in which office he continued as long as he lived. He was a firm undeviating advocate and supporter of the American Revolution. In 1776 he was appointed speaker pro tem. of the House of Representatives. The 16th January, 1779, was chairman of the committee to take into custody and possession all the confiscated estate that was in the county of Strafford of Peter Levis, an absentee. On the 7th of June, 1780, he was appointed brigadier general of the militia; and the 27th June, 1782, an assistant judge of the superior court.

In 1784 he was elected a member of the first Executive Council chosen under the constitution of the state. At the close of the year he was appointed judge of probate for the county of Strafford. The tenure of his commission was during good behavior, and his official conduct was correct; but when the people in 1791-2, revised their constitution, they prohibited any man from holding the office of judge after he was seventy years of age; but he considered the prohibition as extending only to judges who should be appointed after that provision was made. The legislature tho't otherwise; and on the 14th of December, 1796, they requested the Governor and Council to remove him from the office of judge of probate. The executive department on the 13th of January, 1797, informed him that on the 30th of that month he might, if he tho't proper, appear before them, and shew cause why he should not be removed. Instead of appearing, he wrote them that he had faithfully discharged his duty — that he had some business pending before him as judge that he could not then finish, but that on the 13th of the then next May he would resign his judgeship, which he accordingly did ; and on the 27th of that month the Governor and Council formally accepted his resignation.

He was a man of sound judgment, and of a fair moral character ; of great decision of character, prompt, and ready ; punctual in his attendance, and faithful in the execution of the various offices he held.

He had a strong vigorous constitution, and usually enjoyed a high state of health. He died on the fourth day of April, 1803, in the eighty second year of his age.

BENJAMIN BELLOWS

The son of Benjamin Bellows was born in Lunenburg, Massachusetts, in the year 1741 ; and moved with his father to Walpole, New Hampshire, where he lived and died.

He was industrious, prudent, frugal, honest, and humane. For a number of years he supplied the new settlers in that town and its vicinity with provisions. He had a certain fixed price for provisions, whatever might be the plenty or scarcity ; he steadily demanded and took fifty cents for a bushel of Indian corn, eighty three for wheat, sixty seven for rye, and thirty three for oats, ten cents a pound for salt pork, and six for the whole swine per pound unsalted. He adhered to these prices long after paper money had depreciated, and by that means lost large sums.

In early life he was an officer in the militia ; in 1768 he received a commission of lieutenant colonel of a regiment from the royal government. On the 25th of December, 1784, he was appointed brigadier general, and on the 22d of June, 1786, major general.

He was a zealous efficient supporter of the American Revolution. On hearing of the skirmish at Lexington, being then colonel in the militia, he immediately repaired to head quarters at Cambridge. He went three times to Ticonderoga, and was present and active in the capture of Burgoyne.

He was early appointed a justice of the peace, and continued such, under all the changes of government, till his death.

He was appointed register of deeds for the county of Cheshire in which he lived, soon after the province in 1771 was divided into counties, and held that office as long as he lived.

He was often a representative, and several years Councillor in the state legislature. On the 13th of January and the 7th of February, 1781, and on the 19th of June, 1782, the legislature three several times appointed him a delegate to the Congress of the United States; but he declined the trust.

On the 25th of December, 1784, he was appointed a judge of the court of common pleas in the county of Cheshire, which office he held till he resigned it on the 2d of October, 1793.

He was four times in regular succession, to wit, in the years 1789, 1792, 1796, and 1800, appointed an elector of the President and Vice President of the United States.

At all times he possessed the confidence and esteem of the people; and in all the various offices he held, never discovered a selfish disposition, but a firm unwavering resolution to perform his duty. Tho' his talents were not brilliant, or his imagination sprightly, he was a man of sound practical judgment, of strict integrity, and great prudence. His manners were simple and plain; and his mode of living, frugal and economical. What his father said of him was literally true — "he was good for himself and everybody else."

He died in June, 1802, aged sixty one years.

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

Was a native and resident in Dunstable, New Hampshire. In conjunction with the Reverend Doctor Langdon he published a map of New Hampshire, which was inscribed to the Hon. Thomas Townsend Secretary of War, England. He was an early advocate for the American Revolution, and soon after it commenced was a member of the legislature. On the 20th of December, 1777, he was appointed a member of the committee of safety for the state; and the 26th of that month a commissioner to meet commissioners from other states at New Haven, to regulate prices; but this last appointment he did not accept. In 1778 was a member of the New Hampshire Council. On the 28th of February, 1783, was appointed a delegate to the Congress of the United States — the 26th December re-appointed; and on the first day of March, 1784, took his seat in that body. Previous to this he was register of probate for the county of Hillsborough, and on the first day of January, 1784, the legislature of the state authorized the judge of probate for that county to appoint a register pro tem. during his absence to Congress. On the 25th of December, 1784, he was appointed judge of probate for the county of Hillsborough, which office, I think, he held as long as he lived. On the 3d of November, 1785, he was appointed brigadier general of the militia. He was a man of handsome talents, of good address, and pleasing manners. He died on the 16th of July, 1788, in the fiftieth year of his age.

JOSHUA BRACKETT

Was born at Greenland, in New Hampshire, in May, 1733; entered Harvard College in 1748, and graduated there in 1752. After he left college, at the importunate request of his parents, but against his own inclination, he studied theology. He was licensed, by the association, as a preacher, but preached only a short time. He then devoted himself to the study of physic, being more congenial to his mind than that of theology. He pursued his medical studies under the direction of Doctor Clement Jackson of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, who was then at the head of the profession in that town. After finishing his medical studies with Doctor Jackson, he commenced the practice of physic in that place; where he remained as long as he lived.

In early life he married Hannah Whipple, who survived him. He was a zealous active supporter of the American Revolution, and a member of the committee of safety. On the 24th of January, 1776, the general court appointed him judge of the court of admiralty for New Hampshire, which he held till the executive of the state, on the 25th of March, 1785, re-appointed him to the same office. Under these appointments he continued a judge till the duties of that office were transferred to the district judge of the United States.

“He was of a mild and placid disposition, social and unaffected in his manners. Benevolence was a permanent trait in his character, and philanthropy regulated every movement of his soul.”<sup>1</sup> He was a modest man, unassuming in his manners, and much beloved and respected by his friends, and all who knew him. He was a man of sound judgment, of warm friendship—an enemy to flattery—and had little ambition for popular applause. In his religious sentiments he was a Universalist. During the last twenty five years of his life, he kept a thermometrical and meteorological register.

His greatest delight and closest application was to that of his profession. In medicine, his motto was imitate nature—look at the beasts of the field and imitate them. His tenderness and sympathy with his patients was a striking trait in his character. To his patients he was very attentive. “In his professional labors, he was peculiarly kind to the poor, and never made a charge, when he had reason to think the payment would occasion the smallest embarrassment.”<sup>1</sup>

On the 30th of October, 1783, he was chosen an honorary member of the Massachusetts Medical Society; and, in 1791 or 1792, Harvard College conferred on him the degree of doctor in medicine.

He was a zealous promoter of the New Hampshire Medical Society, and an active member of it. This society, I think, was formed in the year 1790. The legislature of New Hampshire, on the 16th of February, 1791, incorporated it, and Doctor Brackett was one of the members named in the act of incorporation. At the first meeting of the society, under that act, on the 4th of May, 1791, he was elected the first vice president. On the 19th of June, 1793, he was elected president of the society, and continued in that office, by repeated elections, till May 15th, 1799, when, on account of declining health, he resigned the office. Previous to his resignation, he presented the society with one hundred forty three volumes of valuable books, as a foundation for a library. The society made their “respectful acknowledgements to him for his diligent and friendly attention to its interest, and for his liberal donation to it.”

For near thirty years before his decease, he had used his influence, to have a professorship of natural history and botany, established at Harvard College. To aid in accomplishing that object, he made a donation of fifteen hundred dollars to the college.

In 1802, he was afflicted with disease, which he tho’t was in the region of his heart; but acknowledged he did not know the nature of it. He tho’t it probable, the waters of Saratoga might afford him relief. On the 23d of June he left Portsmouth to try their efficacy. After he had been there a few days, he was convinced the water was not useful to him, and that the disease would soon terminate his life, and he hastened home. He arrived at his house on the 9th of July at two o’clock in the morning. He walked out, and four days visited his patients; but after that period was confined to his chamber—and on the 17th of that month, died in the seventieth year of his age.

JOHN CALFE

Was born in Newbury, Massachusetts, but lived and died in Hampstead, New Hampshire. He was a plain farmer, and when young received such an education as our common country schools then afforded. He learned to read, write well, and acquired a knowledge of the necessary rules of arithmetic. His talents were not above mediocrity, but he possessed common sense, which he applied to practical purposes. His powers of imagination and of invention were languid, but his prudence, and the gravity of his manners, in some measure supplied the defect.

His sobriety and unshaken faith in the creed of his ancestors induced him, at an early period in life, to become a member of the Congregational church; and of that church, at the age of thirty, he was unanimously chosen a deacon, which he accepted.

The offices he held in the civil department were various. For many years he was the representative of Hampstead in the legislature, and for a much longer period an acting justice of the peace, and eventually of the quorum and throughout the state.

He was a zealous supporter of the war of the Revolution; and, I think, for a few months commanded a company of militia in actual service. Tho' in that station he performed his duty, yet his talents and disposition were better suited to the civil than military life.

August 20th, 1778, he was elected a member of the committee of safety for the state; and on the 18th of March, 1780, was again re-chosen to that office, and held it by subsequent elections not only till the war terminated, but until the constitution established by the people took effect in June, 1784. This committee was usually chosen at each session by the legislature, and sat most of the time during their recess. The authority of the committee was great, and extended to whatever related to public measures. They issued orders to the militia to enlist, and, if necessary, to draft soldiers, and ordered them when raised to the army; they adjusted and settled claims against the state, and drew orders for the payment of the public money; issued precepts to arrest persons who were suspected of being inimical to the country; tried, discharged, or committed them to prison, remitted, or prolonged the term of their imprisonment; gave permits to privateers to cruise, and merchant vessels to sail from this to other states; ordered those whom they imprisoned with other disaffected persons to remove within the enemy's lines ; and, in a word, during the recess of the legislature, exercised the legislative, executive, and judicial authority of the state in a summary manner, as the state of public affairs required. This power, the extent of which so much depended upon the discretion of the committee, the subject of this memoir exercised with great moderation. Some of his colleagues assured me that he uniformly supported the mildest measures, and sought to mitigate, but never to increase the punishment of those who were considered guilty of violating the rights and laws of his country.

On the 19th of June, 1781, the legislature appointed him a commissioner to repair to Rhode Island, and with the commissioners from the other New England states, devise ways and means to procure provisions for the regular supply of the army. But the difficulty of effecting it, in the state the country was then in, appeared to him so great, that he declined the appointment.

December 22d, 1780, he was appointed assistant clerk of the House of Representatives, which he held till the 18th of December, 1783, when he was appointed clerk of that House, which he held by annual election till his death, except for a few days in June, 1790, when he was absent. He performed for many years the duties of this office with great fidelity. The practice of the speakers of the House was to impose on him most of the reading, which was considerable.

With strong lungs and a clear voice, he read so loud and distinctly that he was heard in every part of the house ; but he read without emphasis, and without varying the tone, or raising or falling of the voice. In his office he was modest and unassuming—he seldom communicated his opinion to any member in private conversation upon any subject which was pending in the house, unless they requested it, and then with such a mild conciliating manner as produced great effect. The long period he had served as a member and clerk afforded him a thorough knowledge of what had been done, and the modes of proceeding. He was often publicly requested, by particular members to give information on particular subjects, and his recollection seldom failed to afford it. His influence in the house was great, and that influence he did not abuse. He had a peculiar faculty, when a session was half gone of fixing the day when it would terminate : and he was generally so correct on that point, that when one member enquired of another when they should adjourn, the reply was, have you not heard the clerk say?

February 26th, 1783, the legislature, who then possessed the authority of making appointments, made him a judge of the court of common pleas for the county of Rockingham. In that office he continued until the constitution took effect, when the executive re-appointed him to the same office, which he held as long as he lived.

He was a member of the convention, which met in 1781 and continued its session till the last of October, 1783, and formed the constitution of New Hampshire. He was also a member of the convention, which in 1791 and 1792, revised that constitution, and secretary of that convention. Tho' he took no part in the debates of the last convention, not having talents for speaking in public assemblies, he steadily opposed every provision for a change in the judiciary, and every thing that could affect the business of the courts of common pleas. But he was in favor of revising the article in the constitution respecting religion so as to subject all the inhabitants of towns to support the clergyman whom the majority should elect as their teacher.

He was a member of the convention which met in February, 1788, to decide the important question whether the state would ratify the constitution of the United States; of this convention he was secretary. He was in favor of ratifying that constitution. His political tenets were those of a federalist; and to that party he steadily adhered thro' life, tho' he partook little of the spirit of a partizan.

On the 3d of January, 1789, upon the resignation of John Taylor Gilman, he was elected Treasurer of the state. That being an office of much pecuniary responsibility requiring habits of greater accuracy than he possessed; and as it was expected the office should be kept in Exeter, it would require him to remove his family there which would increase his expenditures: under these circumstances he prudently declined accepting the office.

In all the offices which he held he preserved the reputation of strict integrity. His temper was mild, and his disposition naturally led him to accommodate and oblige all who had business to transact with him. His manners were plain, simple, and unaffected, and he conversed as freely with the lowest class of men as with his equals or superiors. There was nothing in his conduct which evinced the smallest tincture of pride, much less of haughtiness.

Except in the case of the Revolution, and the establishment of the constitution of this state and of the United States, both of which the Revolution made necessary, his object was to make no changes, but such as resulted from those great events. He tho't every change, tho' not accompanied with danger, had a tendency to disquiet and unsettle the minds of the people—and that of innovations there was no certainty of their improving the condition of the world. This course was the natural result of a mind fond of ease, not inclined to investigation, but averse to bold and hazardous experiments. With equanimity of mind he quietly followed the course which time and habit had sanctioned. As he sought no changes, and was social and easy with all men, he had no personal enemies to disturb his repose.

He tho't highly of public opinion—it was to him the supreme law, and to its dictates he yielded implicit obedience in all the business that his various offices imposed upon him. If he tho't the people required a measure, he supported it; but if they were opposed, he joined them. He was literally a man of the people, and he was the people's man. To this circumstance, and to his integrity, the mildness of his temper, and the amenity of his manners, he owed all his popularity. It was however, his misfortune, as it always must be of such men, that he sometimes mistook the clamor of the restless and the arts of the designing for public opinion. This mistake sometimes led him astray, but he never persevered in error after he discovered it.

The mildness of his disposition excited so much respect for the welfare of others, that his feelings influenced his judgment more than his reason. He shrunk from the task of inflicting full justice, where it subjected a man to punishment and loss. Here his feelings prevailed over his duty of providing for the security and peace of society by the punishment of the guilty. This error, however, is more excusable than its opposite—extreme severity. The evils of the first are mitigated by their appeal to the heart, but the other outrages all the finer feelings of humanity.

Of all the offices he held, and the one to which he was most strongly attached, that of judge, he had the smallest qualifications, and performed its duties the most imperfectly. He did not possess that legal information, he had not that discriminating mind, or that decision of character, which are necessary for that office. The greatest errors he committed as a judge, and they occurred frequently, was a delay of justice. A tale of distress, or even of hardship and inconvenience, tho' unsupported by legal evidence, was sufficient to induce him to continue a cause from term to term. He had more pity for the poor and unfortunate than regard to the rights of his opponent.

After having spent the greatest portion of his time in public employment, and living a life of simplicity and frugality, but not of the strictest economy, he left less property to his children than industrious farmers usually acquire.

Tho' he was temperate in the use of ardent and vinous liquors, his appetite for food was keen. He indulged it—became corpulent—his legs swelled to an enormous size, and for several of his last years were ulcerous, and eventually, on the thirtieth of October, 1808, the disease terminated his life in the sixty eighth year of his age.

At the meeting of the legislature in November following, the house resolved, "that whereas it has pleased God, in his wise providence, to remove by death the Honorable John Calfe Esq', who during our revolutionary war, rendered important services to our common country, and for more than twenty five years, successively, has faithfully served this State as clerk of the house of representatives, therefore, voted, that in testimony of our respect to the memory of the honorable John Calfe, the members of this house wear crape on the left arm during the present session."

JOSEPH CILLEY

[Plumer's MSS. Biog., Vol. 4, page 32.]

Was born in Nottingham, New Hampshire, in the year 1735. His father was one of the first settlers of that town, and tho't it of more importance to instruct and constantly employ his son in agriculture, than to send him to school. When Joseph reached the state of manhood, he had acquired only so much learning as to read a common book, write a legible hand, and understand the three or four first and most useful rules in arithmetic. In his early days he had little time or inclination for study, indeed, he never in life read much, except the journals of the day, and the statute laws of the province and state.

In 1758 he inlisted as a private soldier under Captain Neal, who was attached to Major Rogers's battalion of rangers, and marched to the northern frontiers and Canada, and was there appointed a sergeant. He continued in the service more than a year.

When young he possessed a sound judgment, quick apprehension, and much assurance. The people of the town in which he lived, and its vicinity, were litigious; and soon after his return from the northern expedition he commenced, self-taught, the practice of an advocate in the numerous suits and controversies before justices of the peace, arbitrators, and referees. He drew writs and pleas before justices. This practice he continued with a manly independence till the Revolution.

But he early discovered a much stronger disposition for the military than the civil life. Arms had more powerful attractions to him than the subtlety and refinement of judicial proceedings. In the militia he gradually rose from the rank of a soldier to that of an officer; and before the Revolution had a captain's commission under the royal government.

In 1774, when the political controversy between this country and Great Britain ran high, he publicly and zealously espoused the cause of his country; and in the close of this and the beginning of the succeeding year, before the British had actually commenced hostility, but after it was reduced to a moral certainty that the contest would terminate in war, he, with a number of others, went to the British fort in the harbor of Portsmouth, dismantled it, and removed the cannon, arms, and ammunition to places of safety in the country; which afterwards proved of great value to the American army.

As soon as intelligence reached him of the skirmish at Lexington of the 19th of April, 1775, he marched at the head of one hundred volunteers to head quarters at Cambridge, and promptly tendered his services to his country. He was appointed lieutenant colonel in the Revolutionary army; and in April, 1777, colonel of a regiment, and held the command during the war. Tho' he was a strict disciplinarian, his constant unremitted attention to the comfort and care of his soldiers, secured him their confidence and esteem. He was with the northern army, and fought bravely in the actions of the 19th of September and 7th of October, 1777. In the battle of Monmouth, in August, 1778, he displayed such bravery as merited, and he received, the approbation and thanks of the commander in chief. He distinguished himself in the perilous action, under General Wayne, in storming and taking Stony Point. On the 20th of March, 1779, the New Hampshire House of Representatives, unanimously presented him with an elegant pair of pistols, as a token of the intention of the State to reward merit in a brave officer. And on the 19th of June, 1781, the legislature appointed him a commissioner in behalf of New Hampshire, to repair to Rhode Island on the 25th of that month, to meet such commissioners as might be appointed by the other New England states, to agree upon a method of regularly sending supplies to the army during that year.

After peace was established in 1783, he returned to his family, and was afterwards appointed first major general of the militia, justice of the peace and quorum thro' the state, representative, Senator, Councillor, and member of the convention who in 1791 revised the constitution of the state. He discharged the duties of the various offices he held, with promptness, decision, and strict integrity.

As a magistrate he did but little business. From 1783 to the close of his life he took more pains and pleasure in persuading people to compromise their suits and controversies than in adjudicating them.

As a politician he was strictly and literally a republican. He disapproved of many of the measures of Washington's administration; and to most of those adopted by John Adams during his presidency, he was decidedly opposed. The new judiciary, the sedition law, the stamp act, and direct tax, he openly reprobated, as innovations upon our republican system, tending to increase the burthens of the people, and assimilate our government to the corrupt monarchies of Europe.

During the Revolutionary War, he was deeply impressed with a sense of the injustice, oppression, and tyranny that Great Britain exercised against the United States; and tho' that nation had acknowledged our independence and was at peace with us, he considered her as hostile to our prosperity. Hence arose his decided disapprobation of Jay's treaty, and the measures of our government to carry that treaty into effect. Tho' he esteemed and venerated his late commander, President Washington, and believed him to be the real friend of his country, he tho't he was too much inclined to augment his authority, and too much disposed to administer the government in a way and manner more similar to that of Great Britain than republican principles justified. But as the constituted authorities had passed laws to carry those measures into effect, he yielded obedience to their dictates, tho' he pronounced them impolitic and unjust. His object was to influence the people to elect men to office whose sentiments accorded with his own; and therefore he early advocated the election of Mr. Jefferson to the presidency.

As he had fought with the French army in this country to acquire our own liberty and independence, and contracted an intimacy and friendship with La Fayette and other French officers, who became zealous advocates for the French revolution, he believed their object was to establish a free government in France, and cordially approved of that revolution, and was anxious for its success. At this period our country was divided into two great political parties, designated by the names of federalists and anti-federalists, and by some called an English party and a French party. He was considered as attached to the French party; but he with disdain disclaimed all foreign influence, affirming that his principles and attachments were purely American.

As a legislator and Councillor, his political tenets had an influence on his conduct, but never induced him to adopt violent measures. As a representative, Senator, and member of convention, he was uniformly in favor of those measures which he tho't best suited to preserve the liberties of the people, secure the rights of property, and defend the person and character of the citizen. Tho' it was an object with him to promote men of his own political views; nothing could induce him, as Councillor, to give his consent for a man whom he considered unfit for an office. On several occasions he advised to the appointment of federalists to important offices, in preference to men of his own party, on the principle that the former were best qualified.

He was a man of good judgment, a lively imagination, and of great decision of character. His passions were strong and irritable, his expressions quick and hasty; but he was humane and tender-hearted. He was, on all occasions, open, frank, and explicit in avowing his sentiments; there was no vice he so much abhorred and detested as hypocrisy. His passions were too strong to be deceitful; he despised and contemned the artful, cool, designing knave. He was manly and liberal—incapable of meanness; and tho' his manners were not those of the courtier, they were easy, plain, and correct.

Neither the ties of friendship or consanguinity, tho' he felt their force, could restrain him from aiding those whom he considered injured or oppressed by his connections. His son Jonathan had arrested one Lane on the charge of having fraudulently destroyed a promissory note. The justice ordered the accused to find surety for his appearance at the next superior court. Every person present, was either so much connected with the complainant, or afraid of offending him, or apprehensive of involving themselves in trouble and expence, that Lane was unable to procure surety, and the justice made out a mittimus to commit him to prison. At this moment the general accidentally heard of the transaction, hasted to the justice, and tendered himself as bail. Lane was liberated, and on trial was acquitted.

His friendship was sincere and ardent; and his prejudices, for he had them, were the effect of strong passions, and not of a depraved heart. To his temperate living he added great industry. His religion consisted more in the practice of the moral and social virtues, than in articles of faith, the observance of ceremonials, or in attending the preaching of the clergy.

His person was about five feet nine inches high, and somewhat corpulent; his eyes black and sparkling; his countenance animated, and he walked with great agility. His mode of living was plain, frugal, and economical, avoiding both the extremes of prodigality and parsimony. He usually retired to rest at nine in the evening, and commonly rose at four in the morning.

He had a strong attachment to property, and was attentive to the means of acquiring and preserving it. He left to his numerous family, what, in New Hampshire, was considered a handsome estate, and lived to see all his children in eligible circumstances.

In August, 1799, he had a severe attack of the colic, a disease to which he was subject. After having obtained partial relief from that complaint, about the middle of that month he rode about thirty miles into the country to transact some business which he considered of importance to settle. His disease returned with increased violence; racked with extreme pain, he was, with difficulty, bro't in a carriage to his own house. His first and constant impressions, during his sickness, were that it would prove fatal to him. These impressions proved correct. A sphacelation seized his bowels; he bore his pains with great fortitude, and died with a calm composed mind, in the sixty fifth year of his age. He was interred with masonic honors, by the lodge of which he had formerly been master.

JOHN DUDLEY

Was the third son of James Dudley, and was born at Exeter, New Hampshire, on the 9th of April, 1725. His parents were poor and unable to afford him the advantages of what is now called a common school education. He learned to read, and that was the extent of his school learning, till he went to live with Colonel Daniel Gilman as a hired man to labor on his farm. The colonel soon perceived that he had a mind susceptible and desirous of improvement, and gave him such advantages in his family as were gratifying to his thirst for knowledge, and in some measure remedied his want of an earlier education. But with all his acquirements he was, at no period of his life, able to write five sentences of good English.

On leaving Colonel Gilman's service, he married Elizabeth Gilman the daughter of Caleb Gilman of Exeter; by her he had a number of children—his wife, four sons, and two of his daughters survived him. He settled in his native town as a grocer, and commenced business with a favorable prospect, but soon lost by fire what property he had. He was not, however, discouraged, but persevered in business and prospered. He acquired an honest popularity; and was much employed in the municipal affairs of the town.

In 1766 he removed from Exeter to Raymond; and in 1768 was appointed a justice of the peace. At Raymond he purchased a tract of land for a farm, and engaged in agricultural pursuits and the lumber trade, both of which he followed with great industry. His mode of living was simple, plain, and frugal. His buildings, furniture, and apparel were made for use, not show. His manners and conversation were equally plain, and partook more of nature than art. He was not wealthy, but free from debt; and being frugal and economical, and having few artificial wants, he had sufficient property. He was not subject to the anxious cares and pride of the rich, or the privations and depressing dependence of the poor.

He was an early, decided, and constant friend to the American cause, strenuously opposed the encroachments of the British government upon the rights of the colonists. In principles, and from habit, he was a firm unwavering republican, who practically considered the rights of all men as being equal. As soon as he heard of the battle of Lexington, in April, 1775, he called for his horse—refused to wait for him, but set out on foot to rally the militia of Raymond and the neighboring towns. He succeeded in collecting a considerable armed force, and sent them on to Massachusetts, but proceeded himself to Exeter, to consult with his friends upon the alarming state of public affairs. From this time he lived for his country rather than for himself or his connections, and for near eight years was never for one week at a time with his family.

On the second of April, 1775, he was appointed by the legislature a member of the committee of safety, and held that office by very frequent elections till June, 1783, when the committee was dissolved. This committee, during the recess of the legislature, possessed all the legislative and executive authority of the government, and was a high responsible trust. In this station he performed his duty with propriety and promptness. He was distinguished for his punctual attendance, and on one occasion travelled sixteen miles to meet his colleagues in such a violent snow storm that no one but himself went into the committee room for the day.

In 1775 he was a member of the House of Representatives, and continued such till June, 1784. On the 11th of June, 1776, he was of the committee, who were appointed by the legislature to draft the declaration that New Hampshire was an independent state. In 1777 and 1780 he was speaker pro tempore, and in 1782 and 1783 was speaker of the House. In 1784 he was elected Senator, but declined the office.

On the 26th of January, 1776, he was appointed a judge of the court of common pleas for the county of Rockingham, which office he held till June, 1784, when the constitution under which that court was instituted expired.

By all his public services during the Revolution, and they were many and useful, he made no money; but according to an estimation, made by himself, he actually lost in that period one half of his property.

He was a man of a strong penetrating mind, and retentive memory. An acute observer of man, and one of nature's scholars, who continued to improve till his death. He was an advocate for morality, industry, and economy, but an enemy to deceit and hypocrisy; honest and upright in all his transactions, and liberal and friendly to the honest, industrious poor.

On the 28th of July, 1784, the Governor and Council nominated him to be a judge of the superior court, and soon after appointed him. Tho' the salary was then small, and the travel and services considerable, he accepted the office. Tho' he had not a legal education, he had those qualifications without which a law education is in a great measure useless: he had patience, discernment and integrity, which neither partiality nor prejudice, threat nor flattery, hope nor fear, could seduce or awe. These qualities, in a great measure, supplied the deficiency of his education. His great object was to administer that substantial justice, for which courts were instituted; and this he generally effected, tho' some times at the expence of the strict principles and forms of the law. The naked principles of legal right had less influence with him than those of equity. Of the statutes of the state and the usages of our courts he was well acquainted. If his knowledge of the principles of law, and the standard works on those principles, had been equal to his talents, he would have ranked high as a judicial officer. That eminent lawyer and judge, Theophilus Parsons, who had long practiced in our courts, once observed, "Tho' we may smile at his language, and ridicule his manners, yet Dudley, take him all and in all, was the greatest and best judge I ever knew in New Hampshire."

Tho' he used rude and barbarous language, and uttered many new and uncouth expressions, yet he conveyed his ideas in such a simple, yet forcible manner, as was always clearly understood; and his influence with jurors was indeed great.

When first appointed judge he was often troubled with private applications from suitors requesting to know what he tho't of their cause. He considered such applications improper, and frowned upon those who made them; still they continued. At length he came to the resolution to hear them, ask questions, but give no intimation of his own opinion. In many instances when those causes came to trial, from the information the party had given him, he was induced to ask questions of the witnesses, the answers to which, some times, disclosed new facts, and led both the court and jury to decide against the applicant.

In 1792, when the constitution was revised, it provided that no man should hold the office of judge after he had attained the age of seventy years. As Judge Dudley was appointed before the prohibition was established, he tho't it did not partake of a retrospective character, and therefore could not affect him. But the legislature were of a different opinion, and as it was known that he was more than seventy years old, they on the 14th of December, 1796, addressed the Governor and Council to remove him, for that cause, from office. On the 13th of January, 1797, the Governor and Council notified the judge that they would hear him, if he pleased, shew cause, if any he had, why he should not be removed from office agreeably to the address of the legislature. The Governor, at the same time, wrote him a private friendly letter, advising him to resign. On the first day of February following the executive received a letter from the judge resigning his office.

When young he embraced the Calvinistic principles of religion; when about forty years old he abandoned those, and adopted Arminianism but did not associate with any particular sect or society. Twenty years after that he embraced, and publicly professed, the doctrine of the universal salvation of all mankind. His faith in this tenet was firm and unshaken as long as he lived. He devoted much of his leisure time to the reading and study of the Bible and Winchester. His views were truly liberal, and he was an advocate for the rights of conscience and unlimited freedom in religion. He tho't no man ought to be molested, censured, or slighted on account of his religious opinions, however erroneous those opinions might be.

After he resigned his seat on the bench, having no public duties to perform, he spent the remainder of his days with his family, and was scarcely ever a mile from home. He spent more of his time in reading than in conversation, and retained his faculties to the last.

After a short illness of eighteen hours, occasioned by pain in the breast, he died on the 21st of May, 1805, in the eighty first year of his age.

ABIEL FOSTER

[Plumer's MSS. Biog., Vol. 4, page 348.]

The son of Captain Asa Foster, was born in Andover, Massachusetts, in August, 1735; and graduated at Harvard College in 1756. Of the learned professions he selected theology; and in January, 1761, was ordained pastor of the Congregational church in Canterbury, New Hampshire, where after that time he resided as long as he lived. As a theologian he was liberal in his opinions, and inculcated the necessity and utility of practicing moral and social virtues. In 1779 the connection between him and that church and congregation was dissolved, but not on account of any immoral or irregular conduct on his part.

He married a daughter of the late Judge Badger of Gilmanton, by whom he had children, several of whom survived him.

His manners were not graceful, but conciliating. His temper mild—his moral character irreproachable—and in every stage of his life he possessed and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of those who knew him. Soon after he left the pulpit, he was appointed a justice of the peace; and elected a representative to the legislature of the state; and in 1782 was twice appointed special justice of the superior court.

On the 11th of February, 1783, the legislature appointed him a delegate to the Congress of the United States, under the confederation; on the 29th of July following he took his seat, which he held till the tenth of October, 1785.

In July, 1784, he was appointed a judge of the court of common pleas for the county of Rockingham.

On the 14th of August, 1789, he took his seat as representative in the first Congress under the constitution of the United States, and held it to the 4th of March, 1791.

In September, 1791, he was a member of the convention to revise the constitution of New Hampshire; and the three following years was a member of the Senate, and the two last of those years was president of the Senate.

On the 7th of December, 1795, he took his seat in the Congress of the United States, and held it, under different elections, till the 4th of March 1803. He was punctual in his attendance in congress, except the last session, when the ill state of his health confined him for a number of days to his chamber. In the debates he took no part, but never avoided voting upon any question. In politics he was an undeviating federalist, apparently moderate, but uniformly voted with that party on all political questions.

He was not a man of great talents, or of a vivid imagination. He possessed a decent stock of common sense and sound judgment; and was more distinguished for practical than theoretical knowledge. He was attached to his country, and faithfully served his constituents in such a manner as he tho't would best promote their interest. In all the offices he held he acted with caution and fidelity. As a scholar he had no claims to distinction.

When his congressional services closed, his health and strength was very much impaired. He was several weeks in performing his journey home — frequently obliged to rest a day or two at a time; and never after recovered a state of sound health. In February, 1806, he died of debility, in the seventy first year of his age.

JONATHAN FREEMAN

[Plumer's MSS. Biog., Vol. 4, page 467.]

Was an inhabitant of Hanover, New Hampshire. In February, 1788, he was a member of the New Hampshire convention for ratifying the constitution of the United States, and voted for its ratification. He was for many years a trustee of Dartmouth College. In March, 1789, he was elected a member of the New Hampshire Executive Council. This office he held in regular succession for eight years. In 1791 he was elected a member of the New Hampshire convention for revising the constitution of that state. In November of that year, he was an elector of President and Vice President of the United States. In 1797 he was elected a representative by the people of New Hampshire, to the Congress of the United States. This office he held four years in succession.

He was a man of decent, but not of superior talents. His information was limited and confined to a few subjects, and even on those was not extensive. Upon political systems he was devoted to the party called federalists. He appeared to consider not only all their principles sound, but the conduct of their leaders correct. He possessed a large stock of vanity, and his manners were supercilious.

He died in August, 1808, aged sixty three years.

WILLIAM GARDNER

Was an inhabitant of Portsmouth in New Hampshire. In early life, I think, he officiated as clerk to the late Governor John Langdon, to whom he was, thro' life, a devoted friend. Mr. Gardner wrote a good hand, and was an accurate accountant. The 7th of January, 1778, he was appointed deputy clothier, to purchase clothing for the army. The 7th of January, 1789, he was elected Treasurer of the State of New Hampshire, which office he held till June, 1781. The 17th of that month, the legislature passed a vote of thanks to him for his services as Treasurer. On the 30th of April, 1790, the President, with advice of the Senate, appointed him commissioner of loans for the United States in New Hampshire. This office he accepted; but soon found the salary was small to support himself and family. In 1792 he wrote Mr. Hamilton, the Secretary of the Treasury, that if his salary was not raised he should be obliged to resign. The Secretary on the 14th of June in that year, wrote Gardner that he highly approved of his official conduct, and requested him not to resign. He assured him he tho't he should be able to procure an addition to his salary; and this he effected under an allowance for service as a clerk. On the first of July, 1794, Oliver Woolcot, the Secretary of the Treasury, observed that Mr. Gardner had ably executed the duties of commissioner of the loan office.

The duties of Treasurer, and of the loan office, Mr. Gardner performed with promptness and fidelity. He was honest, accurate, punctual in his attendance, and well qualified for those offices. He was, indeed, a correct and ready accountant. Tho' he had been a constant active supporter of the Revolutionary War, and as such merited respect; but in 1798 he was a zealous, active and violent opposer of John Adams, then President of the United States, and the measures he adopted in relation to those the French had practiced against the United States. For this imprudent conduct the President, in 1798, removed him from office. Immediately after his dismissal, Gardner wrote and published in the Gazette a vindication of his official conduct, and afterwards replied to an anonymous writer. His temperament being ardent, he did not, as a controversial writer, appear to advantage—he exhibited more of passion than argument. Early in life he imbibed the spirit of whiggism, and preserved it as long as he lived.

In 1801, President Jefferson re-appointed Gardner as loan officer, which office he held till, of his own accord, he resigned it in 1816. He was not wealthy, but had a competency for all the necessary and useful purposes of life.

He was for many years grievously afflicted with hypochondria—was peevish and fretful—irritable and passionate. But he was a man of exemplary probity and uprightness. The chief features in his character were strict integrity, generosity, and decision. He was kind and benevolent to the poor and needy. He was open and frank—superior to disguise. He never had a particle of hypocrisy. He hated hypocrites and studiously avoided them.

He died the 30th of April, 1834, aged eighty two years.

JOSEPH GILMAN

[Plumer's MSS. Biog., Vol. 4, page 373.]

Of Exeter, in New Hampshire, was the son of the Reverend Nicholas Gilman. He was early, and continued constantly, an advocate for the American Revolution. On the 20th of December, 1776, he was appointed chairman of the New Hampshire committee of claims; who were required to meet every Wednesday in the year. The 6th of June, 1778, he was appointed an agent to proceed to Massachusetts, respecting the claims of the state against the United States. The twenty second of December following, he was appointed one of the three members of the New Hampshire board of war; and the 24th of May, 1779, as a member of that board, was ordered, by the general court, to take custody of certain goods seized by the state. On the 14th of September, 1782, he was appointed judge of probate for the county of Rockingham. He was authorized to hold that office during the time that Phillips White, the former judge, may be absent from the state, as delegate to Congress. On the first day of January, 1784, he was appointed a member of the committee of safety for the state. In March, 1787, he was elected a member of the New Hampshire Senate, and in June following took his seat; the 13th of that month, he was elected a Councillor. Both of these offices he held one year. The 28th of September, the legislature appointed him the commissioner to settle the continental accounts.

He was a man of decent talents, of a mild temper, easy of access, and of pleasing manners. He was highly esteemed for his integrity, and the fairness of his moral character. He appeared to have had no personal enemies — and was really a popular man.

But with all his offices and popularity, he became poor. His poverty, with other causes, induced him to remove with his family to the Northwestern territory. On the 22d of December, 1796, the President and Senate of the United States appointed him a judge in that territory.

He died at Marietta, in April, 1806, aged sixty eight years.

NICHOLAS GILMAN

The son of Nicholas Gilman, was a native of Exeter, New Hampshire. He had a common school education, and served as a clerk in his father's compting house. In 1776 he was appointed adjutant of the third New Hampshire regiment in the army of the United States, and, I believe, served during the whole of the Revolutionary War in the army.

On the 23d of July, 1787, he took his seat as a member of the convention which met at Philadelphia, to form a constitution for the United States; and was zealous for its adoption. After the convention adjourned, he, on the 25th of September in that year, took his seat in the Congress of the United States, and held it to the end of the next year.

He loved office, and sought it with avidity. In 1788 he was a candidate for representative in Congress, but at the first meetings he had not one third of the votes that were given. At the second meetings of the people he was elected; and held the office eight years in regular succession. On the 4th of July, 1796, he publicly declined being any longer a candidate for that office. In June, 1802, the President of the United States appointed him a commissioner under the bankrupt law. The same month he was a candidate for the office of Senator to Congress; but the legislature declined electing him. In August following he published in the journals of the day, under his own signature, a protest against the proceeding of the legislature in that election. It was written in an angry style. He declared that intrigue, falsehood, and fraud was practiced, and charged several of the members, whom he named, as well as the Treasurer, with being guilty of those evil practices. He was provoked that no one of the accused made any reply to him.

In 1804 he was elected a member of the New Hampshire Senate; and on the 9th of June their president. On the 29th of November the legislature elected him a Senator to Congress for six years. On the 11th of December he resigned his seat in the New Hampshire Senate, and the 14th signified his acceptance of the office of Senator of the United States.

In his person he was tall and well proportioned, remarkably neat, and peculiarly attentive to his dress. He was proud, haughty, and overbearing; but when an election was depending he flattered the meanest of voters. His mental faculties were not above mediocrity, and these he did not improve by reading, tho' considerably by company and conversation. In politics he was for a long time a decided federalist—then a republican—and at last neither—but acted as he tho't selfish policy and public opinion required—calculating, tho' not always correctly, to establish himself with the strongest party. For years he was zealous over-much in supporting Mr. Jefferson and his measures, but at last was hostile to him and his administration. He was never married, and, for a New Hampshire man, was wealthy.

In 1810 a legislative republican caucus nominated him as a candidate for Governor of the state, but he peremptorily refused to accept the nomination. He was then anxious to be re-elected Senator to Congress. In June of that year, on the fourth balloting in the House of Representatives, he was elected by a majority of seven votes; and on the 21st of that month, the Senate concurred the vote of the House. This office he held as long as he lived.

As he was returning home from Congress, he was taken sick at Philadelphia, and after a few days illness died there, on the second day of May, 1814.

Was born in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in the year 1740. His father was a respectable farmer, who lived about three miles from the compact part of the town. The subject of this memoir received his education at the public grammar school in his native town under Major Hale. From school he went into the counting house of Daniel Rindge, a reputable merchant of that place, where he became well acquainted with mercantile transactions. At the close of his apprenticeship, he entered upon a seafaring life, which he followed until the Revolution interrupted commercial business in this country.

He took an early, active, and decided part in opposition to the measures of the British government. His zeal in the cause of the Revolution induced him to make every necessary exertion, which in many respects were eminently useful. In December, 1774, he was one of the leaders of the party who went to the British fort William and Mary at New Castle, confined the captain and his men, and bro't off more than one hundred barrels of gunpowder ;

<sup>1</sup> An interesting and valuable feature of volume XX, of this series, is the biography of John Langdon, by his grandson, John Langdon-Elwyn. The accessible biographies of Governor Langdon have been very meagre considered in comparison with the importance of the relations sustained by him to the war of the Revolution and the politics of the state and nation for a long period. This pamphlet by Mr. Langdon-Elwyn was permitted only a very limited circulation while it was in the control of the author, and but few copies were found after his decease. These have been in the hands of near relatives or in the custody of a few libraries in various parts of the country. The reproduction of the sketch by Mr. Langdon-Elwyn, and the one by Governor Plumer here given, will bring within the reach of historical students a great deal of the life of Governor Langdon which was before practically inaccessible. The Editor of State Papers was allowed the use of the Elwyn pamphlet by the courtesy of Rev. Alfred Langdon-Elwyn, of Philadelphia. The family name, Langdon-Elwyn, was permitted by act of the legislature in 1814, but the double form is not now in common use among Governor Langdon's descendants.

Governor Plumer was born June 25, 1759, and died December 22, 1850. From 1768 he was a resident of this state and much of the time intimately connected with its politics and government. He was necessarily thrown much in contact with the statesmen of his time, and his biographies of contemporaries are an invaluable contribution to history. There is, however, very little reason discoverable for charging Governor Plumer with indiscriminate eulogy in the treatment of his subjects.

John Langdon-Elwyn was born February 1, 1801, and was the eldest grandson of Governor Langdon. He was nineteen years of age at the time of his grandfather's death. A critical observer of men and affairs, his opportunities as a member of the family of Governor Langdon give the production of his pamphlet a special significance.

John Langdon was born June 26, 1741. This date is given authoritatively by Rev. Alfred Langdon-Elwyn, and corrects the current errors and uncertainties as to that fact.

The Rev. Mr. Langdon-Elwyn has placed the editor of these volumes under many obligations by furnishing valuable papers, communicating much important information, and by active and cordial coöperation in the preparation of material already used or reserved for future publication.

and the next day, another company took fifteen of the lightest cannon and the military stores, and removed them into the country.

Early in the year 1775 he was appointed a delegate to the general Congress at Philadelphia, and on the 10th of May took his seat in that assembly. In January, 1776, he was re-appointed a delegate to Congress, but, I think, did not take his seat under that appointment. Congress appointed him agent of prizes in New Hampshire; he was representative and speaker of the state legislature, and some time in that year was appointed a judge of the court of common pleas, which office he resigned in April the year following.

On the 2d of February, 1777, he married Betsey Sherburne the only daughter of the Hon. John Sherburne, by whom he had one daughter, who survived him; but his wife died on the 22d of March, 1813. In 1777 he was again member of the New Hampshire assembly, and speaker of the House.

Soon after the commencement of the Revolutionary War, an independent company of cadets was formed, and he was appointed their commander with the rank of colonel. While the legislature in 1777 was in session and he in the speaker's chair, an application was received from General Gates for more troops. The speaker proposed that the House should immediately adjourn, and, as many of the members as could, march as volunteers to the army with all the men they could collect. His proposal was adopted, and he proceeded as a volunteer to Bennington, and was at the surrender of Burgoyne and his army. He afterwards marched with a detachment of his company to Rhode Island, when the British troops were in possession of the island.

In 1778 Congress appointed him continental agent in New Hampshire. He was their agent for building several ships of war, particularly the ship America, the first ship of the line, I believe, ever built in this country. In that office he continued until the war closed. While most others lost property by the Revolution, he acquired a considerable estate, and at the same time rendered useful services to the nation. In September, 1779, he was president of the New Hampshire convention, to adopt measures to appreciate and support the paper money currency. They held two sessions, one at Concord and the other at Exeter. And from 1778 to 1782 inclusive, he was a member of the legislature and speaker of the House.

October 24th, 1780, he was appointed, by the legislature, a commissioner to meet those from other states, to devise ways and means to raise men and procure provisions for prosecuting the war ; but he declined the appointment.

June 13th, 1783, the legislature appointed him a delegate to the Congress of the United States ; and the two following years he was a member of the New Hampshire Senate.

In 1785 he was a candidate for the presidency of the state ; the whole number of votes were 7,079, of these he had 2,497. The people having made no choice, and he being the second highest on the list, the legislature in June elected him to that office.

In 1786 he was candidate for the presidency, but was not elected ; of 8,567 votes he had 3,600. On the 14th of June, the legislature appointed him a commissioner to meet commissioners from other states, to make arrangements for regulating commerce. That year he rebuilt the bridge over the dock in Portsmouth, called the canoe bridge, and presented it to the town.

In 1787 he was candidate for President of the state, but was not elected ; of 9,289 votes he had 4,034. The legislature appointed him a delegate to the convention, which formed the constitution of the United States ; and the 25th of September he took his seat as a delegate from this state in Congress.

In 1788 he was member of the New Hampshire convention which ratified the constitution of the United States. He was a zealous advocate for the adoption of that constitution, and used all his influence to effect it. In March he was elected a representative to the state legislature, and the 5th of June was chosen speaker of the House, but held that office only a few days ; for on examining the returns it was found that of 8,838 votes he had 4,441, and by a majority of five was elected President of the state. In November the legislature elected him Senator to the Congress of the United States.

He was a man of decent talents, but neither great or brilliant ; in early and middle life he was liberal of his money, but not profuse or lavish ; his manners were easy, polite, and insinuating, and his habits peculiarly social. He courted popularity with the zeal of a lover, and the constancy of a martyr ; and by his manners and habits, was well qualified to acquire and retain it. Tho' he loved pomp and parade, his love of money was stronger, and made him frugal and economical. But he had no claim to literature and science — he was not a good scholar and read but little.

On the 22d of January, 1789, the legislature being in session, he resigned the office of President of the state. On the fourth of March he took his seat in the Senate of the United States; on the 6th of April he was appointed president of the Senate for the sole purpose of opening the returns of votes for President and Vice President of the United States; and the same day was elected the first president pro tempore of the Senate. In forming the Senate into three classes, he drew the class for six years. In June, 1794, the New Hampshire House of Representatives re-elected him for another term of six years, but the Senate virtually negatived him, by a majority of the members voting for another person; but at their winter session, without the house again voting upon the subject, the Senate irregularly concurred with the vote of the House of the preceding session, and Mr. Langdon held his seat in the Senate of the United States until the third day of March, 1801.

In 1794 he became disaffected with President Washington, and in 1795 vehemently opposed the ratification of Jay's treaty with Great Britain. The town of Portsmouth voted him thanks for his opposition, and the inhabitants gave him a public dinner, but a great majority of the people of the state censured and condemned his conduct. From that period he was hostile to all the principal measures of Washington's administration, and to the election and measures of John Adams, and an active zealous partizan of Thomas Jefferson. In New Hampshire he was the head of that political party which, about that time, assumed the name of republicans; and before President Washington's term expired, Mr. Langdon on several occasions, declared he wished a change of men in the government of the United States, from President to door-keeper.

In 1793 some of his partizans, bro't him forward as a candidate for Governor of the state, but of 9,854 votes he had only 1,306.

From 1801 to 1805 inclusive he was a representative in the New Hampshire legislature, and the two last of those years was speaker of the House. In no station or office he ever held did he appear so much to his own advantage as that of a presiding officer. He was attentive, prompt, impartial, and his conduct was generally approved.

In 1802 he was candidate for Governor; of 19,166 votes he had 8,753; in 1803 of 21,317 he had 9,011; in 1804 of 24,282 he had 12,039; but in 1805 of 28,443 he had 16,097 and was elected. In August Dartmouth College conferred on him the degree of doctor of laws. About this time he made a profession of religion, was zealously attached to the church of which he was a member, and cultivated an acquaintance with men professing religion of all denominations. In 1806 he was candidate for Governor ; of 20,573 votes he had 15,277 ; in 1807 of 16,861 he had 13,912 ; and in 1808 of 15,899 he had 12,641 votes.

In 1808, Congress having passed laws laying an embargo upon our navigation, to detach some of his party from him, a report was circulated that he was opposed to those laws ; he published, on the 9th of September, the following declaration :

“ Whereas a report has been industriously circulated in the country that Governor Langdon is opposed to the embargo laws ; and has remonstrated with the president of the United States against certain regulations, necessary to carry the same into effect, and has even sent a vessel to sea ; and whereas it is the duty of every man to establish truth : therefore I feel it incumbent on myself to declare, that the above reports, are founded in falsehood ; and that so far from disapproving of the embargo laws, I am firm in the opinion that they originated in the purest patriotism, are founded in wisdom, and are the only measures that could be adopted to preserve the honor and peace of the United States.
John Langdon.”

In 1809 he was also candidate for Governor ; of 30,983 votes he had 15,241, but was not elected.

In 1810 he was candidate for that office ; of 31,632 votes he had 16,382 and was elected. But such was the spirit of opposition that in Claremont, in the afternoon pending the election, the federalists burnt him in effigy. During the session of the legislature I boarded at the same house with him, and it was apparent that his mental faculties had failed, and that his memory was much impaired. Fully sensible of the fact, and feeling his health declining, he would not consent to be candidate for the next election. The republican party could not agree who should succeed him, and urged him to stand one year more. In December I spent a long evening with him in private. He repeated the applications that had been made to him — said they embarrassed and perplexed him — that he was unwilling to be a candidate, but was apprehensive if he declined and the republicans should fail, he should be severely censured ; and that at his advanced age and with declining health, he could neither bear those reproaches, or the burthens of office. I advised him to be passive, and quietly submit to the will of the people. At length he reluctantly replied — he must, but on the express condition he should never after be named for that office.

In 1811 he was re-elected Governor — of 32,094 votes he had 17,552. When in company he displayed much of the weakness and garrulity of age. He once observed to me, if he was governed by motives purely selfish, and regarded his own reputation, he should never again appear in public, and that he was impatient to return to private life.

On the first Wednesday of June, 1812, after having been two years President, and six years governor of the state, he retired from public life. Few men in New Hampshire ever obtained so many offices, or held them for a longer period, than he did. He owed his elections not to distinguished talents, but to his fascinating address, amenity of manners, and his social habits of greeting every man he met, and to the spirit of party which existed at the time. Tho' he could not in all cases govern, yet he possessed the entire confidence of the party to which he belonged; and whenever he failed of an election, as he did many times, it was because that party was a minority in the state.

As Governor, his manners and deportment were easy and dignified. His speeches, messages, and vetoes to bills and resolves, were not above mediocrity. Many of his observations were too general for practical purposes, or were common-place remarks, more plausible than substantial. His composition as a writer discovered neither strength of reasoning or elegance of diction. Some of the appointments he made were peculiarly unfortunate—the men were not qualified for the offices he gave them. In making appointments, in many cases, it appeared that the politics of the candidate had an undue influence upon his mind. Indeed, I do not recollect of his ever appointing any man to office, except in the militia and justices of the peace, unless the men were of his politics. He unnecessarily multiplied the number of justices of the peace; and the last two years of his administration, the republican Councillors had gained a great ascendancy over him. But with all his defects he had many good qualities—he loved his country, rendered it many services, particularly in the time of the Revolution.

On the 18th of May, 1812, eighty two of the republican members of Congress met, and sixty four of them nominated him as a candidate for Vice President of the United States, and appointed a committee to notify him and request his consent. On the fourth of July following he mentioned the nomination to me with great satisfaction, and observed that in the first draft of an answer to the committee, after mentioning his age induced him to decline, he added if they could not unite in some other person he would, tho' with reluctance, consent to their request; but he said on more mature consideration, he absolutely declined. The following is his answer to the committee:

PORTSMOUTH, May 28, 1812.

Gentlemen,

By the mail of last evening, I had the honor of receiving your letter of the 22d instant, which informs me that at a meeting of republican members of congress, I was recommended for the office of vice president of the United States. This mark of attention and confidence shown by honorable gentlemen, demands my most grateful acknowledgements. I wrote to the honorable Mr. Ringold the day before yesterday, giving some further reasons why I could not consent to be bro't forward as a candidate for vice president of the United States; to which I beg leave to add, that I am now seventy one years of age, my faculties blunted, have lived the last forty years of my life in the whirlpool of politics, and am longing for the sweets of retirement. I am therefore under the painful necessity of declining the honorable offer of my friends of being bro't forward as a candidate for the office of vice president of the United States. My advanced age forbids my undertaking long journies, and renders me incapable of performing the duties of the important station of the vice president with any advantage to our beloved country, or honor to myself. To launch again upon the ocean of politics, at my time of life, appears to me highly improper. I am therefore assured my honorable friends will forgive me for declining to accept their kind offer.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your obliged humble servant,
JOHN LANGDON.

After the war of 1812 commenced, it was reported at Washington and elsewhere, that he declined being candidate for the vice presidency, because he was opposed to Mr. Madison and his measures. This induced him to write the following letter to Mr. Harper, a representative in congress:

PORTSMOUTH, June 15, 1812.

Dear Sir,

Your affecting letter of the 6th instant I have received. Indeed it is impossible for me to find words to express my feelings, and the obligations I am under to my great and good friends. I am overwhelmed when I reflect, that my advanced time of life only, prevented me from complying with their wishes.

I have the most sincere desire to join my friends at this all important moment ; to carry into effect every decided measure to support the honor and independence of our country. I have longed to take my old friend by the hand, and to have an opportunity of paying my personal respects to those honorable gentlemen from the several states, who have been pleased to favor me with their notice, but I am prevented. I should have tho't it an honor, and it would have been my highest pleasure to serve my country in any station, while my great and good friend Mr. Madison continued in the presidency, as I consider him one of our greatest statesmen, an ornament to our country, and above all, the noblest work of God, an honest man. I think it happy for our country that we have at this important crisis, such a decided character at the head of our affairs. As our patience is worn out, and we have drunk the dregs of the cup of humiliation, if we now act with spirit and decision there is nothing to fear. I pray you, Sir, to present my most profound respect to all my friends as they may fall in your way.

I pray you, Sir, to accept the homage of my great respect and esteem.

JOHN LANGDON.

He was the devoted friend of President Madison, and the zealous advocate and supporter of the war of 1812.

Tho' his retirement from the cares and anxiety of public life afforded him great relief, it did not remove the ills and infirmities of age. His health gradually declined, and eventually was grievously afflicted with the paralytic affection. The following are extracts from notes I made at the several times when I visited him.

July 1st, 1813, I dined with him. His mental powers fail — his conversation was upon politics and religion. July 23d, 1816, visited him. He is so literally broken down in body and mind, that it gave me pain to behold the wrecks of human nature, and witness so much debility, decrepitude, and helplessness in a man who had been so distinguished for the elegance of his person, and the offices he had held in public life. He was civil, kind, and affectionate, and tho' weak in mind, yet not foolish. He retained his former opinions, and cautious habits of speaking respecting men and measures ; but on some subjects, and on recent events, he appeared lost and embarrassed, and distrusted his own judgment. April 23d, 1818, found him weak and feeble, but his memory of events of early and middle life not much impaired. And on the second of September in the same year, his speech changed — his corporeal and mental faculties weak, his judgment broken, and his memory defective.

On the 18th of September, 1819, he died, aged seventy nine years.

At his funeral, military honors were performed by the battallion of the United States troops under Col. Walbach, minute guns fired during the procession, the forts, navy yard, and shipping displayed their colors at half mast, and every mark of respect was paid, that was due to a distinguished man.

WOODBURY LANGDON

Was a native of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, only brother of John Langdon, and received his education in the public schools in that town, particularly under the tuition of Major Samuel Hale. From the school he went into the counting room of Henry Sherburne, then one of the most eminent merchants in that town.

After spending some time there, he went several voyages to sea, and then established himself as a merchant in his native town. He was enterprising and industrious in his business, and had accumulated some property at the beginning of the American Revolution, a considerable portion of which was then in England. Near the close of 1775, after the war had commenced, he embarked for London, for the purpose of obtaining that property, and transferring it to this country. Having accomplished his object, in 1777, he returned in a British frigate to New York, where the British general confined him as a prisoner. Some tho't his imprisonment was a finesse of the enemy to impress our people with the idea that the British considered him hostile to them. The circumstance that led to this belief, was, that at the commencement of the Revolution he was opposed to it, and was one of the five who signed a protest against the war; but after his return he entered warmly into the politics of the day, and took an active decided part in opposition to the British government.

During most of the Revolution, and until the establishment of the constitution of the state in 1784, he was an active efficient representative in the state legislature, and several years after, at different periods, held that office. In 1781, while he was attending the general court at Exeter, his elegant dwelling house was consumed by fire. When he received intelligence of the fact the court was engaged in discussing an important subject, in which he took a deep interest, he kept his seat, took part in the debate, and did not leave the court until after the question was decided. In 1784 he was a member of the New Hampshire Senate, and, in the absence of the president of the state, presiding officer; and the June following qualified the members of the legislature.

On the 2d of April, 1779, he was appointed a delegate to the Congress of the United States, and on the 3d of November following he was re-appointed. On the 3d of September of that year he took his seat in Congress, and continued there until the 16th of November following, when he obtained leave of absence. On the 9th of November, 1780, he was again appointed delegate, but on the 12th of January, 1781, he declined the trust. On the 29th of December of that year, and on the 21st of June, 1785, he was re-appointed to that office, but he did not accept either of the two last appointments.

The 21st of June, 1782, he was appointed judge of the superior court, but at the close of that, or early in the following year, he resigned that office. On the 22d of February, 1783, the general court voted, That he be requested to continue as judge his resignation notwithstanding, but he declined.

On the 25th of December, 1784, he was appointed brigadier general of the militia; but it does not appear that he accepted the appointment.

On the 25th of February, 1785, the President and Council appointed him a judge of the superior court of New Hampshire, which he accepted and held for a number of years. Tho' he did not receive a legal education he had acquired much knowledge of the laws. He had a strong discriminating mind, and great promptness and decision of character. He readily discovered the prominent features in a cause, and dispatched business with great facility. I recollect being present when there was a bare quorum of the court on the bench, an action was called for trial in which an uncle of his was a party, and with whom he had a misunderstanding; the counsel for the uncle observed he expected the suit would be continued, as he presumed Judge Langdon would not sit. The judge instantly replied, "He had no prejudice in favor of his uncle, he should sit, and endeavor to do him justice."

Complaints were made to the legislature against the judges of that court that they had not held their terms in some of the counties as the law required. The legislature appointed a committee to inquire of the judges the cause. The committee wrote to each judge, who returned answers. Judge Langdon in his answer frankly admitted the fact, assigned the reasons that prevented him, and in turn accused the legislature of having improperly interfered with the business of the superior court by passing laws to nullify their judgments; and neglecting and refusing to grant the judges those permanent and honorable salaries which the constitution required them to do.

On the 17th of June, 1790, the House of Representatives impeached him, and the Senate ordered him to meet them at Exeter in the August then following for trial. A quorum of the Senate and the judge attended at the time and place appointed, but the Senate found they had no authority to proceed in the recess of the legislature. The judge urged them to proceed; the Senior Senator, unwilling to avow the real cause of their delay, observed there was not a full Senate present. The judge replied he took no exception to their absence — he was even willing to dispense with the attendance of some who were present. But the trial was postponed to the winter session of the legislature.

Before that time arrived the President of the United States appointed him commissioner of loans for the United States in New Hampshire, but he declined accepting it. And in December of that year President Washington and Senate appointed him one of the three commissioners to settle the Revolutionary accounts between the United States and the individual states, which office he accepted. On the 17th of January, 1791, on the eve of his departure for Philadelphia, he addressed a letter to the President of the state resigning his office of judge, as being incompatible with that of commissioner. In that letter he stated freely his opinion of the importance of the office of a judge of the highest court in the state, the inadequacy of the salary, and complained of the encroachments of the legislature upon the judiciary, in passing bills to annul their judgments. He observed “Many are impatiently waiting to fill my place, yet I hope the Executive will be directed to make choice of such a gentleman as will be a credit to the appointment — not an ignoramus — no sluggard — no sycophant.” His letter was accompanied with a vindication of his official conduct as a judge, and his answer to the articles of impeachment. He requested the President to communicate the letters and papers to the two houses of the legislature, which he did.

After these papers were read in the House of Representatives, on the 22d of that month they voted, That as the judge was under an impeachment he ought not to be permitted to resign; and that he was guilty of a contempt in writing that letter and inclosing those papers, which contained scandalous insinuations injurious to the character of some of the members and to many respectable officers. But four days after they ordered the managers to enter a nolle prosequi to the impeachment. At the same time they passed an address to the President and Council requesting them to remove the judge from the office he had resigned, which address the Senate unanimously non-concurred. Thus ended the impeachment, which was instituted more to gratify personal pique and private resentment than to promote the public interest.

In August, 1796, he was a candidate for representative to Congress, but of 6,418 votes he had only 978. In August of the following year he was again candidate for that office, and had 1,423 votes — there was no choice, and being one of the two highest candidates he came into the nomination list, but at the second meetings was not elected. At both those meetings the state was divided into two political parties, federalists and anti-federalists; he belonged to the latter, who were then a minority, and no man of that party, however pure his character or great his talents could command a majority.

In all the offices he held he displayed great ability, and no man ever performed more public duty in less time. He was a man of great independence and decision — bold, keen, and sarcastic, and spoke his mind of men and measures with great freedom. He maintained his opinions with firmness and constancy, and looked with contempt on the mean and base acts that were usually practiced to obtain popularity. He abhorred duplicity — and tho' shrewd and discerning he was open and frank as prudence required. He was distinguished for quickness of apprehension and soundness of judgment — and in point of talents few men, if any, in the state exceeded him. He was diligent and persevering — pursued his object with constant unremitted attention. He was naturally inclined to be arbitrary and haughty, but his sense of what was right, and his pride prevented him from doing intentional evil. To his friends he was attentive, and to his personal enemies, and he had many, he was unyielding. It was his maxim that when he was obliged to quarrel with a man, never to quarrel at the halves. There were periods in his life in which he was embarrassed in his pecuniary concerns, and in which he was unable to make punctual payments, which in some degree affected his reputation.

He died on the 13th of January, 1805, aged sixty six years.

SAMUEL LIVERMORE

Was born in Waltham, Massachusetts, the 25th of May, 1732, graduated at Princeton College in 1754, read law, and in January, 1757, was admitted to practice in the superior court of New Hampshire; and opened an office in Portsmouth, where he became a successful advocate. In 1765 he commenced a settlement in Holderness, of which he was one of the grantees, and by purchase became owner of about half the township, but did not remove there till after the commencement of the Revolutionary War. After that period that town became his permanent residence. In 1768 he was a representative in the provincial assembly, was appointed advocate in the court of admiralty, and in 1769 king's attorney general in New Hampshire, which office he held as long as the royal government existed in the province. The assembly granted him a salary of twenty five pounds per annum. The 17th of January, 1771, he complained to the legislature that his salary was inadequate, and requested that he might have one half of such fines and forfeitures of recognizances as should at the suit of the king be adjudged forfeited. The assembly declined granting his request, but on the 28th of May, 1773, they granted him five pounds for travelling expenses in two years; the 24th of May, 1774, they raised his salary to thirty pounds; and on the 19th of November, 1778, the general court allowed him one hundred pounds for his services as attorney general from May 24th, 1774, to the commencement of the Revolutionary War. The 22d of December following, the legislature appointed him attorney general of the state for the year ensuing, which office he held several years.

In 1779 and 1780 he was a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives, and speaker pro tem. the first year. In 1779 he was appointed by the legislature an agent to Congress respecting the claim of Vermont to the New Hampshire Grants, a tract of country west of the Connecticut river. On the 18th of November in that year, he was appointed a delegate to the Congress of the United States. On the 7th of February, 1780, he took his seat in Congress, and held it till some time in the year 1786.

In 1782 he was appointed chief justice of the superior court of judicature of New Hampshire, which he held till after the constitution of the state took effect; and on the 25th of December was re-appointed. His salary was small; the legislature were not only frugal, but parsimonious of the public money. In June, 1783, the house voted the chief justice should have a salary of eighty pounds a year, but the Council refused to agree to it. The 13th of February, 1786, the Council advise the President of the state to request the opinion of the legislature, whether his seat as chief justice had become vacant by his accepting a commission under the authority of this state as a delegate to the Congress of the United States? In June, 1789, a vote passed the legislature to address the Governor and Council to remove him from the office of judge of the superior court. In 1790, preferring legislative life to the judicial and to avoid a removal from the latter, he resigned his commission as a judge. His conduct while on the bench was generally acceptable to the people. He was indisposed to settle any definite rules for adjudication. In his decisions, he was not systematic. When a previous decision was stated at the bar as an authority, he usually replied, "Every tub must stand on its own bottom." He leaned more to the equity than to the law of the case, and this mode of decision he considered as the most effectual to attain that justice which the law intended. Sound lawyers complained of it, as unsettling the principles of the law and rendering the law uncertain.

In February, 1788, he was a member of the convention for adopting the constitution of the United States, and a powerful advocate for its adoption. And in September, 1791, was a member and president of the convention for revising the constitution of New Hampshire.

In 1789 he was elected by the people a representative to the Congress of the United States, and, by that and a subsequent election, held his seat till the fourth of March, 1793.

In August, 1792, Dartmouth College conferred on him the degree of doctor of laws. The 20th of June in that year, the legislature of New Hampshire elected him a Senator to Congress for the term of six years from the third of March, 1793. In the House of Representatives, of eighty nine votes he had fifty two. On the 7th of December, 1798, he had in the House a majority of one vote, and on the 28th, in the Senate, he had eight out of twelve votes, re-electing him Senator to Congress for another term of six years. The ill state of his health, and the infirmities occasioned by age, induced him on the 12th of June, 1801, to resign his seat in the Senate.

He rose, and continued in office, by the force of talents and the reputation of integrity, and not by the mildness of his temper, or the amenity of his manners. He was a man of strong intellectual powers, of great shrewdness—possessed much wit, and had a vein for severe satire. He reasoned and studied much—he drew from himself more than from books—indeed he was not a great reader—not being fond of books. He had great decision of character—an independence and frankness of mind, which never stooped to please a friend, or avoid an enemy. His passions and prejudices were strong—he was naturally positive and arbitrary—too often imprudent—and too much governed by passion. His principal property was in lands, which were not productive; but he had a competence—his mode of living was neither profuse or sparing. He loved wine, ardent spirits, and a good table, but was not intemperate.

His last years were gloomy and disconsolate—life had few or no charms for him. He died at Holderness, in May, 1803, aged seventy one years.

JOHN SULLIVAN

Was born in Berwick, Maine. His father, John Sullivan, was a native of Ireland—kept a school, and educated his son. This son, without the advantage of an academical education, entered an attorney's office, and, after what was considered the time necessary for the study of the law, was admitted to the bar. He opened an office at Durham, New Hampshire, where he afterwards lived and died. Being poor he was anxious to obtain property, which induced him to encourage litigation—and excited much complaint against him. On the 7th of July, 1766, Simon Rendal, and about one hundred and thirty other persons, inhabitants and freeholders of Durham and towns adjacent, preferred a petition to the legislature, alleging that as an attorney and in that profession he had been guilty of many evil practices, which had very much injured the poorer sort of people, and if not stopped would ruin the town &c. &c., and prayed for relief. Two days after, the legislature ordered the petition to be remitted to the judges of the superior court for their examination; but whether any further proceedings were had upon it, I am unable to say. He was a man of great industry, a bold and energetic advocate, and before the Revolutionary War commenced, was considered in New Hampshire as an eminent lawyer, and did much business in the profession.

He married a woman of decent talents, but little acquainted with the world, and still less with books. By her he had four children, all of whom, I think, survived him. In 1772 he was appointed a major in the militia. He was an early and zealous advocate for the American Revolution. In 1774 the provincial congress of New Hampshire elected him a delegate to the general Congress, where he took his seat in September. In December he was the leader of a small band of enterprising men, who visited the British fort, William and Mary, at New Castle, arrested the captain and his five soldiers, and took one hundred barrels of gunpowder from the fort and removed it to places of security in the country.

In 1775 he was re-appointed delegate to the general Congress, where he took his seat on the 10th of May. On the 22d of June Congress appointed him the seventh brigadier general in the Revolutionary army; he accepted the appointment, resorted to Cambridge, and took command of the army on Winter hill. In the autumn he was sent to Portsmouth, New Hampshire to command the militia raised to defend that town against the enemy.

On the 29th of July, 1776, Congress appointed him a major general in their army. He made an attack upon the British on Staten Island. He landed with a portion of the troops on one part of the island, and ordered Col. Ogden to land at another place, but the general not adhering to the plan of operation which he communicated to the colonel, failed of the principal object of the expedition, tho' the troops destroyed considerable property of the enemy, and made a number of prisoners. He commanded the expedition to Long Island, but was too confident of success to take necessary measures to secure it; he did not place guards at the avenues and passages to prevent tories and spies from communicating information to the enemy. On the 26th of August his army was defeated, and he himself made prisoner. The British general, Lord Howe, granted him a parole and sent him as a messenger to Congress offering terms of peace, which Sullivan on the 2d of September communicated to Congress. He returned to New York, and in October was exchanged. After which he was ordered to the American army in Canada, and on the death of General Thomas took command of it. He found the army small, without subordination, harassed with fatigue, and dispirited by their losses; but by his exertions did much to improve their condition, discipline, and order. With that feeble army he formed the rash determination of defending the post at Savel, but was compelled to abandon it by the unanimous opinion of all his officers, a few hours before the enemy took possession of it. Soon after that event he was superseded in that command, and returned to the main army.

As an officer in the army, he was restless, impatient, and tormented with the idea that he was neglected, and his services disregarded. He communicated his complaints to the commander in chief. On the 15th of March, 1777, General Washington wrote him the following remarkable, frank, and friendly reply: "Do not, my dear General Sullivan, torment yourself any longer with imaginary slights, and involve others in the perplexities you feel on that score. No other officer of rank, in the whole army, has so often conceived himself neglected, slighted, and ill treated as you have done, and none I am sure has had less cause than yourself to entertain such ideas. Mere accidents, things which have occurred in the common course of service, have been considered by you as designed affronts. But pray, Sir, in what respect did General Greene's late command at Fort Lee differ from his present command at Baskenridge, or from yours at Chatham? And what kind of separate command had General Putnam at New York? I never heard of any, except his commanding there ten days before my arrival from Boston and one day after I had left it for Harlem Heights, as senior officer. In like manner at Philadelphia, how did his command differ from the one he has at Princeton, and wherein does either vary from yours at Chatham? Are there any peculiar emoluments or honors to be reaped in the one case and not in the other? No. Why then these unreasonable, these unjustifiable suspicions? Suspensions, which can answer no other end, than to poison your own happiness and add vexation to that of others. General Heath, it is true, was ordered to Peekskill, so was General Spencer, by the mere chapter of accidents (being almost in the country), to Providence, to watch the motion of the fleet, then hovering in the sound. What followed afterwards to either, or both, was more the effect of chance than design.

"Your ideas and mine, respecting separate commands, have but little analogy. I know of but one separate command, properly so called, and that is in the northern department; and General Sullivan, General St. Clair, or any other general officer at Ticonderoga, will be considered in no other light, whilst there is a superior officer in the department, than if he were placed at Chatham, Baskenridge, or Princeton. But I have not time to dwell upon a subject of this kind. I shall quit it with an earnest exhortation, that you will not suffer yourself to be teased with evils, that only exist in the imagination, and with slights, that have no existence at all; keeping in mind, at the same time, that if distant armies are to be formed, there are several gentlemen before you, in point of rank, who have a right to claim a preference."

On the first of July, 1777, apprehending that Congress was about to pass certain resolutions relating to promotions in the army, which he conceived would injuriously affect him, he wrote with great freedom to Congress, complaining of the intended measure. The 7th of that month Congress resolved; that the President be directed to transmit a copy of that letter to General Washington, with directions to let Sullivan know that Congress considered his letter as an attempt to influence their decisions, an invasion of the liberties of the people, and indicating a want of confidence in the justice of Congress, who expected he would make proper acknowledgement for an interference of so dangerous a tendency; but if he was unwilling to serve his country under their authority, he was at liberty to resign his commission and retire.

Pending these transactions a court of inquiry was instituted respecting his expedition to Staten Island, of which much complaint was made — and General Washington informed him that his conduct in that affair was much censured. Tho' that court had made no report upon the subject, Congress on the 4th of September resolved, that General Sullivan be recalled from the army until the inquiry into his conduct be duely made. Gen. Washington, upon receiving this direction, informed Congress that the service might suffer by suspending him, as he was then in want of general officers. Upon receiving this information Congress on the 16th of that month authorized the commander in chief to suspend their former resolve or not until further order. On the 27th of September General Sullivan again wrote Congress complaining of their resolution to suspend him — justifying his conduct — recounting his bravery and sacrifices — and declaring that if the court of inquiry decide in his favor, he will resign his commission and retire from the army. On the 12th of October the court of inquiry unanimously approved of his conduct at Staten Island, and declared that instead of deserving censure it merited the approbation of his country. Instead of tendering his resignation he remained with the army and fought in the battles of Brandywine, and Germantown. At Germantown he was distinguished for his bravery and good conduct. This year the legislature of New Hampshire requested General Washington to appoint him to the command of the northern army.

In August, 1778, he was commander of the army which attempted to capture the British troops at Newport, Rhode Island, but failed, not thro' his misconduct, but by the departure of the French fleet, who had undertaken to aid the expedition by land as well as water, owing to the loss they suffered by bad weather. After the French fleet left him, many of the militia abandoned his camp, and he was compelled to retreat, in which he displayed great skill and ability. The failure of this expedition chagrined and mortified him. In the orders he issued to the army after the retreat, written when his mind was in a state of irritation, he used imprudent language respecting the French admiral, D'Estaing and his officers. He expressed a hope, "That events will prove America able to procure that by her own arms, which her allies refuse to assist her in obtaining;" and he and all his general officers signed a protest against the French fleet's leaving them. But he afterwards wrote D'Estaing, apologizing, explaining, and softening the language used in his orders and protest, and declaring he did not intend to make any charge against the French or their officers.

On the 9th of September Congress resolved, that the retreat made by him, with the troops under his command, from Rhode Island, was prudent, timely, and well executed, and that Congress highly approved of the same; and that their thanks be given to him, and to the officers and troops under his command, for their fortitude and bravery, displayed in the action of August 29th, in which they repulsed the British forces and maintained the field. The legislature of New Hampshire also voted him their thanks for his spirited conduct in that action.

The ravages and cruelties of the Indians induced Congress in 1779 to send a large army into the Indian country. The command of it was given to General Sullivan, and he was explicitly ordered to inflict severe vengeance on the Indians, and lay waste their country. He presented to Congress a list of the rations &c. which he considered necessary for the expedition; this was so extravagant that it disgusted and offended the members. While he was on this command he lived in a state of extravagance and waste, and indulged himself in censuring and condemning Congress for their parsimony. The troops were fatigued with marching thro' the wilderness to Tioga, and much of their stores were wasted. When he arrived in that country he neglected to guard the passages, and his movements were so slow that many of the Indian warriors escaped. But he slew many Indians, destroyed their fortifications, burnt their houses or rather huts, cut down all their green corn and fruit trees, and spared not a single vestige of human industry. Severe and cruel as this mode of warfare appears, the orders he received justified it. The account he gave Congress of his expedition was greatly exaggerated, and exposed him to the censure and ridicule of the officers of the army; but Congress on the 13th of October voted him their thanks for having effectually executed the expedition against the Indians.

After his return he was mortified by the cold reception he met from the officers of the army, and being disgusted and dissatisfied with the service, on the 9th of November he tendered his resignation to Congress, upon the pretext that his ill health made it necessary. On the 13th Congress referred his request to a committee. His friends attempted to obtain a vote to request him to continue in the service, but failed. And on the 30th Congress resolved, that they had a just sense of his services and abilities, and greatly regretted the indisposition which deprived them of so gallant an officer; but as his ill health would not permit his continuance in the army, they accepted his resignation, and directed the President to return him their thanks for his past services. After this he returned to New Hampshire, and resumed his professional business at the bar.

On the 18th of February, 1780, the legislature of New Hampshire congratulated him on his safe return from the army, and the recovery of his health, and voted him thanks for his services. They appointed him agent for settling the line with New York. On the 22d of June they elected him delegate to the Congress of the United States, where on the 11th of September he took his seat; and on the 19th of the following January was re-elected to that office.

Some difficulty having arisen between New Hampshire and Vermont respecting boundaries, and Vermont having made encroachments upon our territory, the legislature directed one thousand of men to be raised, and on the 11th of January, 1782, appointed him commander of the troops. And the 21st of June he was appointed attorney general of the state, which occasioned a great increase of his professional business. In 1783 he was president of the Society of Cincinnati in New Hampshire. In 1784 he erected mills &c. for manufacturing cloth and other articles, but after expending considerable sums of money in the business, was obliged to abandon the undertaking. After the establishment of the constitution of the state, he was re-appointed attorney general, and major general of the militia, both of which offices he had previously held.

On the 27th of January, 1785, as major general of the militia, he published an address to the people urging them to improve their military establishment — and recommending the militia to adopt a cheap uniform dress of domestic manufacture. He devoted a considerable portion of his time to reviewing and instructing them. He was candidate for the office of President of the state, but was not elected — he had only 777 votes. But he was representative, speaker of the House, and Councillor.

On the 28th of February, 1786, he declined accepting the office of attorney general, and resigned that of major general of the militia. In March he was elected by the people President of the state. In September there was an insurrection in the state; an armed rabble surrounded the house in which the legislature was assembled, and demanded an emission of paper money. The measures he adopted were prompt and efficient, and he speedily suppressed the insurrection; for which he merited and received the approbation of the people.

On the 27th of June Congress approved of the conduct of the paymaster general in refusing to pay him his commutation for half pay as an officer in the army, alleging that he withdrew from the army before the conclusion of the war; but on the 31st of August they recommended the state to pay him $4,300, in the same way as they had paid their other officers, and charge it to the United States — which was done.

In 1787 he was again elected President. In 1788 he was candidate for that office, but not elected — of 8,838 votes he received 3,664. But he was representative, and speaker of the House. During the last session of that House, a bill was pending for punishing those who should travel on Sundays. A member who was opposed to some of its provisions, called upon him and stated his objections. Sullivan observed the objections were just and ought to prevail, but as he expected to be candidate for President the next year, he must yield his opinion to others and support the bill. Certain amendments were read to him, which he said he approved, but which if offered he should oppose, and support the bill in its present form, which he did with great vehemence.

He was a member and president of the New Hampshire convention, for ratifying the constitution of the United States, and a zealous advocate for its adoption. In December he was a candidate for representative to Congress, but having only 1,058 votes was not elected.

He was passionately fond of show and parade, and loved popularity immoderately. He was generous and liberal with his money — greedy of applause, and no flattery was too gross to please him. He sought office with avidity, and in intrigue and management was an adept, not scrupulous of the means. In the management of his private affairs he had no economy — tho' he received much money, he was embarrassed by debts, and died insolvent. He acquired an extensive knowledge of men and things, and a considerable knowledge of books. His messages to the legislature, addresses to the people, and public letters were, in general, written in a plain energetic style. From Harvard University he received the degree of master of arts, and from Dartmouth College that of doctor of laws.

In January, 1789, the legislature appointed him an elector of President and Vice President of the United States; in March the people elected him President of the state; and in September the President and Senate of the United States appointed him district judge for the district of New Hampshire. The office of judge he held as long as he lived. In the autumn session of the legislature an attempt was made to declare the office of President of the state could not be held by him when he was a judge of the United States. On the 29th of December he sent a message to the legislature, avowing his right to hold both offices — reflecting with severity on those members who maintained a different opinion — and declaring he had no inclination to offer himself as a candidate for the presidency the next year, but should hold that office until the term for which he was elected should expire. On the 4th of June, 1790, his term having ended, the legislature voted him their thanks for his services as President of the state.

The duties of district judge were very few and inconsiderable — they required less time and attention than agreed with his long established habits of industry and activity. His health and mental faculties soon began to decline, and he indulged too freely in the use of ardent spirits. He and his family involved themselves in a bitter and violent quarrel with one of his neighbors, which excited his deep resentment, and impelled him to think and act; but when that excitement ceased he became more feeble both in body and mind. His intellectual powers were broken down — in fact he approached a state of idiocy, and was utterly incapable of holding a court, or transacting any business either as a judge or private man. Early in the year 1794, he could neither feed, dress, or undress himself; and on the 23d of January, 1795, he died, aged fifty four years.

MESHECH WEARE

[Plumer's MSS. Blog., Vol. 3, page 215.]

Was a native of New Hampshire, and descended from ancestors who had held public offices from the first establishment of the province. He graduated at Harvard College in 1735, and was, I believe, for a short time after, a preacher.

In 1745, if not at an earlier period, the town of Hampton Falls, where he lived, elected him their representative to the legislature, which office he held, the most if not all the time, until 1776. It was the practice of the House to appoint some one of their members to be their clerk — that office he held several years. In 1752 he was appointed their speaker, and it is said he held that office for several years.

Tho' he was not educated a lawyer, he devoted a considerable portion of his time to the study of law, in which he made proficiency. In the year 1747 he was appointed judge of the superior court, and held that office until 1776, when he was appointed chief justice of the court, and continued such, (being thirty five years a judge of that court,) until the 19th day of June, 1782, when, on account of his advanced age and its attendant infirmities, he resigned. The legislature with regret accepted his resignation. They expressed the high sense they entertained of the uprightness and integrity of his conduct, of his due administration of justice in that office during his long continuance in it, and tendered him their united thanks.

In 1754 he was appointed commissioner for the province to the Congress which was held at Albany; and previous to the year 1766 was colonel of the third New Hampshire regiment of militia.

From 1776 to 1784 he was a member of the New Hampshire committee of safety, who in the recess of the legislature possessed the legislative and executive powers of the state.

In 1776 he was elected a member of the Council and President of the state, and held these offices until 1784, when the people established a new constitution, and under that the people elected him the first President; but before June, 1785, the infirmities of age induced him to resign, having been more than eight years President of the state. Previous to this, to wit the 30th of January, 1782, he was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

He was not a man of an original inventive genius, but possessed extensive knowledge, an accurate judgment, a calm temper, a modest deportment, an upright and benevolent heart, and a habit of prudence and diligence in performing the various duties of public and private life. He was not a theoretic, but a practical statesman, distinguished for his amiableness, uprightness, and fidelity. From the Declaration of Independence to the conclusion of the Revolutionary War, he was invested at the same time with the highest offices, legislative, judicial, and executive, and continued in them by annual elections. The various important offices, which he held during the long period of nearly forty five years, made him neither proud or haughty. They did not change his mind, manners, or mode of living — his old mansion house remained unpainted, its ancient furniture was still used, and he continued to the last the same modest unassuming man. But from all his offices, and with all his prudence, he added not a cent to his property, which did not exceed that of a good common farmer. In the infancy of our republic, our officers of high rank were more anxious to serve the public than themselves.

Worn down with the services he had rendered the public, and after a lingering illness which he bore with much patience and fortitude, he died calmly at his mansion house in Hampton Falls, on the 15th day of January, 1786, in the seventy third year of his age.

PAINE WINGATE

The son of the Rev. Paine Wingate, and grandson of Joshua Wingate, was born at Amesbury, in Massachusetts, the 14th day of May, 1739. In 1755 he entered Harvard College, and in 1759 graduated there. On the 14th of December, 1763, he was ordained pastor of the Congregational church and society at Hampton Falls, but in 1771, was dismissed from the ministry.

The 17th of May, 1775, he was a member of the provincial congress of New Hampshire, which met that day at Exeter. In March, 1776, he removed to Stratham, and attended to the business of agriculture.

Before he left Hampton Falls he married a Miss Pickering, a native of Salem, Massachusetts. She was a sister of the late Timothy Pickering, and three years younger than her husband. With her he lived three fourths of a century, and had a number of children, several of whom, as well as his wife survived him.

February 11th, 1788, Mr. Wingate took his seat as a delegate in the Revolutionary Congress, and continued such till the government under the constitution of the United States was in operation in 1789.

At the election of representatives to Congress in 1788 he was a candidate for representative to the first Congress to be held in 1789, under the constitution of the United States. Two thousand five hundred sixty three votes were necessary for a choice, and he had only two thousand fifty four, and of course was not elected. The first day of January, 1789, he was a candidate for the Senate of the United States. In the New Hampshire House of Representatives, of eighty four votes, he had fifty eight, and in the Senate a majority, and therefore was elected. This office he held from 1789 to 1793, four years. In June, 1792, he was a candidate for re-election, but in the House of Representatives of eighty nine votes he received only twenty eight, and of course was not chosen. But from 1793 to 1795, two years, he was a representative in the Congress of the United States.

The 31st of December, 1793, he was appointed a justice of the peace and quorum throughout the State of New Hampshire. He was, I think, after his return from Congress elected a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives.

The 4th of April, 1798, he was appointed a judge of the superior court of New Hampshire, to hold the office till he should attain the age of seventy years — a period of nearly eleven years. This office he accepted. The 30th of May, 1809, the Governor and Council notified him that his age had disqualified him from holding the office of a judge. When appointed judge he was unacquainted with the principles of law, and the usages and adjudications of judicial courts. Of the technicalities of the law, its form and modes of procedure, and the principles of special pleading, he was profoundly ignorant. Of the principles of common law, its use and importance, he was a stranger. His mind appeared to be directed to what he considered equitable not what was legal. He was predisposed to sacrifice law to equity. But his views of equity were not those of definite and certain principles of equity, which do not infringe the principles of law — but which relieves suitors from the obligation of express and implied contracts where neither statute or common law interferes. His was the narrow contracted project which arose from the individual case, and the individual character of the parties, and not from established principles of equity which are applicable to all suits. His system reduced the judge and the juror to the character of arbitrators without chart or compass to direct their course.

As a judge he was uniformly and zealously in favor of making every man support the clergyman who was settled in the town, whether they believed his doctrine or not. The court consisted of Farrar, Wingate and Arthur Livermore, and were in term at Dover; Judge Livermore informed me that the other two judges had expressed a decided disapprobation of my conduct and zeal in supporting those who claimed exemption from ministerial taxes assessed for the support of clergymen. I expressed my regret that any of the judges were inclined to support a privileged order, but that circumstance, instead of restraining, would increase my exertions—and that so long as I remained at the bar, the court would find me a persevering, determined advocate for the rights of conscience and of property.

Judge Wingate was a man of talents—of a strong mind, and such was respected. He read much, even in old age—and was then able to read fine print. His reading at that time was principally confined to history and theology. His memory was strong and retentive—and he acquired a rich fund of useful knowledge—and general information. He wrote little for the press. A concise memoir of the late Meshech Weare is the only publication that I recollect reading that was printed in his lifetime. After his death a few of his letters were published.

He considered debt as a great evil, and studiously avoided it. He did not wait to have his laborers, mechanics and others call upon him for their services, but at particular periods settled and paid their demands. As a sample of this, in January, 1837, he paid the editor of the Portsmouth Journal, the ninety fifth semi-annual subscription for that paper.

His frugality, on some occasions, degenerated into that species of avarice whose character approaches meanness. An instance of this kind occurred when he was in Congress. It arose in consequence of an amour he had with the landlady. She demanded a sum of money from him. He reluctantly consented to pay, but not so much as she required. She then threatened him with a suit. To avoid this, instead of paying her demand, he agreed to submit the question to arbitrators, who awarded a liberal sum to the woman — with which he reluctantly complied. This statement I received from one of the arbitrators.

Judge Wingate was considered as a man of strict integrity, but of strong passions and prejudices. He was a man of great decision of character — and on some occasions it appeared to result more from obstinacy than a commendable spirit of manly firmness. This was sometimes apparent from his conduct in court. This induced that distinguished jurist, Theophilus Parsons, to say to the writer, "That it was of great importance, that your Judge Wingate should form a correct opinion before he pronounces it — for after that, law, reason and authority will be unavailing."

His person in the prime of life was six feet high, and he then weighed from one hundred seventy to one hundred seventy five pounds; but four or five years before his death his body bent forward and he walked with considerable difficulty.

The 15th of August, 1830, he observed in one of his letters that when he left college he was the youngest in his class, but that when he wrote he was the oldest that then stood on the catalogue of Harvard College. He also survived every member of the first Congress under the constitution, with whom he served.

During a number of the last years he lived, his diet was simple. It consisted principally of boiled milk and biscuit, morning and evening. He seldom drank tea or coffee, excepting when he had company.

On the 7th of March, 1838, he died at his residence in Stratham, aged ninety eight years ten months and twelve days.

RELATIVE TO THE

ADOPTION OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

NOTE.

In 1868 and 1869, Captain W. F. Goodwin, U. S. A., who was much interested in New Hampshire history, collected copies of the records of the several towns in this state, which showed the action of each regarding the convention to consider the Federal constitution. The returns collectively are quite voluminous, and will be arranged in a suitable volume and lodged in the office of the Secretary of State. They indicate that many of the towns appointed advisory committees to consider the proposed form of Federal government, and to act to some extent as mentors for the delegates. Very few towns by vote appear to have instructed against ratification. Probably there were less than ten of this class, and the delegates from one or two of these disregarded their instructions. Colonel Ebenezer Smith, of the Meredith-New Hampton class, with three others, did not vote. (See "The New Hampshire Federal Convention," by J. B. Walker, Concord, N. H.) The author of this work mentions some interesting traditions as to the final vote in the convention.

The following letter, found among the Goodwin town returns, is an addition to the traditionary evidence. Isaac Patterson was for many years town clerk of Bath. He was a lawyer by profession, and lived to a great age. His father, Captain Isaac Patterson, represented the Piermont-Warren class, and not the Franconia-Lincoln class as is sometimes erroneously stated. The letter is as follows:

BATH, N. H., April 30, 1869.

CAPT. W. F. GOODWIN, U. S. A.,

Dear Sir:

I have seen two or three letters from you requesting a copy from the town records of Bath of the proceedings in choosing a delegate to attend the convention at Exeter, N. H., February, 1788, to ratify the Federal constitution.

I will now inform you why you have not received any answer to your letters. It is because there are no records of said convention in this town. The town meeting for the choice of a delegate to attend said convention, I can find no record of. Bath was probably classed with Lisbon, formerly called Concord, and I think Samuel Young was the delegate chosen.

I most sincerely sympathize with you in your laudable undertaking to obtain copies from the town records of the most important convention ever held in New Hampshire.

My father, Isaac Patterson, of Piermont, was a member of said convention, representing classed towns. The opposition was sanguine they would defeat the adoption of the constitution in this state, but the friends of the measure were enough for them. While the opposition were still at dinner, the vote was taken and the measure carried.

Yours truly,

ISAAC PATTERSON, Town Clerk.

Sir I have rec<sup>d</sup> the letters Your Excellency did me the honor to write on the 11th & 30th July — the 26th Aug<sup>t</sup> — the 2<sup>d</sup> Oct<sup>r</sup>, the 25th Nov<sup>r</sup> 1786 and the 24th Jan<sup>y</sup> 1787, & have the honor to inform You that Your letter of the 3<sup>d</sup> of this month with the vote of the Gen-

The Act passed by the United States in Congress Assembled on the 20th of Feb<sup>y</sup> & which I had the honor of transmitting to You in my letter of the 21st so fully expresses their opinion touching the expediency of a Convention of Deputies from the several States for the purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation and reporting to Congress and the several Legislatures such alterations and provisions therein as shall when agreed to in Congress and confirmed by the States render the federal constitution adequate to the exigencies of Government and the preservation of the Union, that Your Delegates will, I presume find no difficulty in proceeding to join the Convention, conformably to the vote of the General Court. —

I have the honor to transmit to Your Excellency herewith enclosed an Act of Congress of the 23<sup>d</sup> for reducing the public expenditures and a state of the representation for the present month — and am with the greatest respect

My dear Sir

As an old friend, a number of Gentlemen members of the convention have pressed me to write to you soliciting that you urge the departure of the delegates from New Hampshire

Impressed most fully with the belief that we are verging fast to anarchy, and that the present Convention is the only mean of avoiding the most flagitious evils that ever afflicted three millions of freemen I have chearfully consented to their request, and beg leave to have recourse to your kind friendship for an excuse if any is necessary. There are here a number of the most respectable characters from several states, among whom is our illustrious friend Gen<sup>l</sup> Washington who is extremely anxious on the subject of the New Hampshire delegates.

A number of states sufficient for organization and to commence business will assemble this week. If the Delegates come all the states excepting Rhode Island will be shortly represented Endeavor then my dear Sir to push this matter with all y<sup>r</sup> powers. I am persuaded from the present complexion of opinions, that the issue will prove that you have highly served y<sup>r</sup> Country in promoting the Measure

dear Sir

I have the pleasure to inform you of my having arrived at this place on the 21st instant, M<sup>r</sup> Langdon arrived a few hours before and, notwithstanding we are so late in the day, it is a circumstance, in this critical state of affairs, that seems highly pleasing to the Convention in general. — Much has been done (though nothing conclusively) and much remains to do — A great diversity of sentiment must be expected on this great Occassion: feeble minds are for feeble measures & some for patching the old garment with here & there a shred of new Stuff; while vigorous minds and warm Constitutions advocate a high toned Monarchy — This is perhaps a necessary contrast as “all natures difference keeps all natures peace” it is probable the conclusion will be on a medium between the two extremes. —

As secrecy is not otherwise enjoined than as prudence may dictate to each individual — in a letter to my brother John, of the 28th instant, I gave him (for the satisfaction of two or three who will not make it public) a hint respecting the general principles of the plan of national Government, that will probably be handed out — which will not be submitted to the Legislatures but after the approbation of Congress to an assembly or assemblies of Representatives recommended by the several Legislatures, to be expressly chosen by the people to consider & decide thereon. —

Great wisdom & prudence as well as liberallity of Sentiment & a readiness to surrender natural rights & privileges for the good of the nation appears in the southern delegates in general and I most devoutly wish that the same spirit may pervade the whole Country that the people by absurdly endeavoring to retain all their natural rights may not be involved in Calamitous factions which would end but with the loss of all

Please to present my Respectful Compliments to M<sup>r</sup> Gilman & love to the doctor

NEW YORK October 31st 1787

Sir

I am honored with your Excellency's obliging favor of the 22<sup>d</sup> of september, which unfortunately did not come to hand untill last evening by post ; — but the letter, alluded, in reply to mine of the 18th of august I have not had the pleasure to receive ; — What devious paths they may have taken or into what unkind hands have fallen I know not — but consider it very unfortunate that I did not receive them in time, as it has occasioned some delay on my part, and has probably deprived me of such further communications as would have been very satisfactory & useful. —

When I had the honor to address your Excellency last from Philadelphia it was not my intention to have taken a seat in Congress this year but as it was conceived important to have a full House on the Subject of the new plan of Government I was induced to take a seat ; and have continued in Congress in expectation of receiving a small supply of Money and of having a Colleague for the next year. — I am unhappy in not having received a line from your Excellency on the Subject of the new Constitution : — I presume however it will have your support — and from all accounts from the different States I think there is a great prospect of its being generally adopted. — New York (ever Anti-federal) will keep back in order to direct her proceedings by the conduct of other states.

The intemperance of a number of the members of the Pennsylvania Legislature has made enemys to the new plan — but not such as to render its adoption very doubtful. — Virginia has given rise to the greatest opposition; but their delegates inform me that their last letters have removed all doubts of its adoption in the Ancient dominion:—their opposition arises from an illfounded jealousy of New England on the Subject of Commercial regulations, the power of making which they are unwilling to leave to a Majority of the Legislature; but wish to have it so established in the Constitution, as that the five Southern States may have the power to prevent all such regulations as may, by possibility, operate against their present interest—This is their great objection—an other of inferior order (and which I believe had a powerful operation on the sentiments of the gentleman from Massachusetts who refused his assent) is the equal representation in the Senate—These are objections of a nature not to be removed; and if the States do not adopt the present plan—notwithstanding its imperfections,—I am fully convinced that there is not the remotest probability of gaining the general assent to one less exceptionable—and in that case (after all our blustering) we shall exhibit to the world nothing new—but shall probably pursue the track of nations that have gone before us and establish a Government or Governments by the sword and seal it with blood. —

In the course of conversation with the delegates of Virginia I find they are interrogated by those who have the management of the finances of that State; on the subject of State Speculations in public securities—and it is recommended by a number of their most respectable Characters to lay all taxes in hard money and empower an Agent to purchase their Quota—they are not in possession of their quota of the old emission Money and have asked me how we would part with ours—I have informed them that probably they might buy it but have evaded all questions respecting a price—Now sir—if the Virginians are disposed to give a tolerable price for this money would it not be well for us to sell it and purchase the final settlement Notes on the best terms we can.—

The sale of the Western lands is going on very well; what is already sold and applied for will amount Seven Million dollars—and if North Carolina & Georgia should make such Cessions as might be expected, it is supposed there will be public lands enough to absorb the most, or perhaps the whole of the domestic debt—It will however appreciate as the sum in circulation diminishes—therefore if our State could adopt the policy of Virginia in buying up a few thousand pounds with hard Money I should think it would prove very advantageous; particularly to the poorer class of people who often become victims to the avarice of the Harpies that are some times employed in collecting taxes. —

Pennsylvania & New York have bought up their quotas of the public securities and Massachusetts has bought in a considerable sum.

We have no dispatches by the last packet — but the news paper account of the commotions in Europe is so correspondent to the last official advices that I am inclined to consider it as a tolerable state of facts and enclose it for your Excellencys perusal — as, in the course of writing I may insert things of a nature improper for public discussion I must request your Excellency will please to communicate such parts, only, of my letters, as the public good may require. —

Your letter to Mess<sup>rs</sup> P. & H. — will go on by the morning post. —

With Sentiments of the highest Respect I have the honor to be

Your Excellencys Most Obedient & Most Humble servant.

NEW YORK 19 January, 1788

My Dear Sir

The new Minister of France, the Count de Montiers who arrived yesterday brought the enclosed letter from our common friend the Marquis de la Fayette. It is addressed to you on the supposition of your being in this city and President of Congress. But alas there is no Congress although two months have elapsed since one ought to have been assembled agreeably to the confederation.

The new constitution! the new Constitution! is the general cry this way. Much paper is spoiled on the subject, and many essays are written which perhaps are not read by either side. It is a stubborn fact however, that the present system called the confederation has run down, — That the springs if ever it had others, than the late army have utterly lost their tone, and the machine cannot be wound up again.

But something must be done speedily or we shall be involved in all the horrors of anarchy and seperate interests—This indeed appears to have been serious judgment of all the states which have formally considered the new constitution, and therefore they have adopted it, not as a perfect system, but as the best that could be obtained under existing circumstances.

If to those states which have already adopted it, Massachusetts and New Hampshire should be added, a doubt cannot be entertained, but that it will be received generally in the course of the present year—If Massachusetts and New Hampshire reject it we shall have to encounter a boisterous and uncertain ocean of events.

Should you have leisure, I shall be much obliged by a confidential information of the disposition of New Hampshire on the subject, and you may rest assured that your confidence will not be misplaced

I am my dear Sir with great respect and affection

Dear Sir,—I have at length the pleasure to enclose you the favorable result of the Convention at Boston. The amendments are a blemish, but are in the least offensive form. The minority, also, is very disagreeably large, but the temper of it is some atonement. I am assured by Mr. King that the leaders of it, as well as the members of it in general, are in good humor, and will countenance no irregular opposition, there or elsewhere. The Convention of New Hampshire is now sitting. There seems to be no question that the issue there will add a seventh pillar, as the phrase now is, to the federal Temple.

[Farmer's State Papers, Vol. 11, p. 125.]

NEW YORK Feb. 16, 1788—

Sir

Last Saturday evening I arrived at this City, and on the Monday following took my seat in Congress. Seven states only had been represented in Congress before that time, and but three or four days had been improved for any business since they formed. The states now represented are New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersies Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland & South Carolina. There are single members from Connecticut, North Carolina & Georgia, and others are expected in dayly. In the course of the present week some dispatches from Mr Adams at London have arrived, and been communicated to Congress. They were dated I think in November. I have not had opportunity to read them at the office & am able to give your Excellency no very particular account of their contents. A principal design however appears to me was to suggest some prudential conduct to be observed by the United States in regard to the disputes then subsisting between France & Great Britain, by intermedling with which it seems that our Minister at the United Netherlands has got himself most sadly embarrassed. Mr Adams is to return home soon & is directed to take leave of his Britanic Majesty and of their high Mightinesses by giving assurances of the attachment & friendship of the United states to them respectively. Congress also have assigned next Tuesday week as the day for receiving the minister plenipotentiary of his most Christian Majesty who has lately arrived.

Your Excellency will probably have heard that New York have agreed to call a Convention to meet in June next. The Convention in North Carolina I am told is not to meet until July which will be the latest of the twelve States. Some suppose that since the Massachusetts have adopted the new Constitution all the states will comply. None seem to doubt of nine States.

I have now a personal concern for which I must beg your Excellency's favorable assistance. Mr Sam<sup>l</sup> Stacey of Portsmouth has an order on a Gentleman in New York for 500 Dollars which I expect will be paid to me soon as his Attorney, & which will be under his command whenever called for. This money unless he has some use for it in New York, which I know nothing of it would be convenient for him to receive in New Hampshire, and on the other hand as I came on with but little money for myself as well as for Mr Gilman it would be very convenient for us to reserve the money here for our necessary expences & draw upon the Treasurer at Exeter for the like sum to pay him. This Mr Stacey no doubt will consent to do provided he can be sure of his money whenever he calls for it. What the present state of the Treasury is I know not, but if your Excellency will be pleased to direct the Treasurer to pay that sum or such part of it as you shall think fit to our order in favor of M<sup>r</sup> Stacey and the Treasurer can find himself able to answer the Order, or give in consequence of your direction encouragement of speedy payment, I hope the matter may be managed to M<sup>r</sup> Stacey's and our mutual advantage, and Your Excellency will thereby confer great obligations on M<sup>r</sup> Gilman and myself—The part of the money which I suppose would answer my purposes, — would be 50 pounds for which sum I have already your Excellency's Order and only need your particular influence with the treasurer for the payment of — For the remainder of the money M<sup>r</sup> Gilman wishes an Order & the like influence. If your Excellency will do me the honor of a Letter as soon as may be, upon this subject and any other matters you may have in command, I shall think myself greatly obliged, and have the honor to be your Excellency's most respectful and humble Servant

NEW YORK, March 3d, 1788.

Dear Sir,—The Convention of New Hampshire have disappointed much the general expectation. Instead of adopting the Constitution, they have adjourned, without any final decision, until June, this expedient being found necessary to prevent a rejection. It seems that a majority of three or four members would have voted in the negative, but in this majority were a number who had been proselyted by the discussions, but were bound by positive instructions. These concurred with the federalists in the adjournment, and carried it by a majority of fifty-seven against forty-seven. It is not much doubted that, in the event, New Hampshire will be among the adopting States. But the influence of this check will be very considerable in this State, (New York,) and in several others. I have enquired whether June was preferred for the second meeting from any reference to Virginia or New York, and am informed that it was merely an accommodation to the intermediate annual elections and Courts.

[Writings of James Madison, Vol. 1, p. 383.]

NEW YORK, March 3, 1788.

Dear Sir,—The Convention of New Hampshire has afforded a very disagreeable subject of communication. It has not rejected the Constitution, but it has failed to adopt it. Contrary to all calculations that had been made, it appeared, on a meeting of the members, that a majority of three or four was adverse to the object before them, and that, on a final question on the merits, the decision would be in the negative. In this critical state of things, the federalists thought it best to attempt an adjournment; and having proselyted some of the members who were positively instructed against the Constitution, the attempt succeeded by a majority of 57 against 47, if my information as to the numbers be correct. It seems to be fully expected that some of the instructed members will prevail on their towns to unfetter them, and that, in the event, New Hampshire will be among the adopting States. The mischief elsewhere will, in the mean time, be of a serious nature. The second meeting is to be in June. This circumstance will probably be construed in Virginia as making contemporary arrangements with her. It is explained to me however, as having reference merely to the conveniency of the members, whose attendance at their annual elections and courts would not consist with an earlier period. The opposition, I understand, is composed precisely of the same description of characters with that of Massachusetts, and stands contrasted to the wealth, abilities, and respectability of the State.

I am preparing to set out for Orange, and promise myself the pleasure of taking Mount Vernon in the way.

I remain, yours most respectfully and affectionately.

[James Madison to Edmund Randolph.]

[Elliott's Debates, Vol. 5, p. 578.]

NEW YORK, March 3, 1788.

Dear Sir, — The convention of New Hampshire have disappointed the general expectation. They have not rejected the Constitution, but they have adjourned without adopting it. It was found that, on a final question, there would be a majority of three or four in the negative; but in this number were included some who, with instructions from their towns against the Constitution, have been proselyted by the discussions. These, concurring with the federalists in the adjournment, carried it by fifty-seven against forty-seven, if I am rightly informed as to the numbers. The second meeting is not to be till the last week in June. I have inquired of the gentlemen from that quarter, what particularly recommended so late a day, supposing it might refer to the times fixed by New York and Virginia. They tell me it was governed by the intermediate annual elections and courts. If the opposition in that state be such as they are described, it is not probable that they pursue any sort of plan, more than that of Massachusetts. This event, whatever cause may have produced it, or whatever consequences it may have in New Hampshire, is no small check to the progress of the business. The opposition here, which are unquestionably hostile to every thing beyond the federal principle, will take new spirits. The event in Massachusetts had almost extinguished their hopes. That in Pennsylvania will, probably, be equally encouraged.

NEW YORK March 22<sup>d</sup> 1788

I am honored with your Excellency's favor of the 28th ultimo and beg leave to express my thanks for the particulars of the action at Exeter: — That the defence of the System was great as the ground was advantageous I have no doubt, but have still to regret (with much apprehension) that the victory was not more compleat. — Your Excellencys expectations of success in the next engagement affords some consolation — yet I am sorry the field assign'd for the scene of action is so much in favor of the adverse party

Those that have not been in the way of seeing and hearing can hardly imagine what pernicious effects our Convention business has produced in a number of the States — New Hampshire had been counted on by friends & foes as being perfectly federal — so that from the ratification of the new System in Massachusetts — the opposers began to make excuses and change sides in all Quarters but immediately on your adjournment they augmented their forces took possession of their old ground and seem determined to maintain it at all hazards. —

The Governor of this State acts no longer under covert but is open and indefatigable in the opposition. In Pennsylvania, I am informed, affairs have a most unfavourable aspect — The Anti<sup>s</sup> are forming associations — holding County Conventions &c much in the stile of the Massachusetts rebellion — by all late accounts from Virginia the opposition is there increasing and there is reason to apprehend that North Carolina is too highly tinctured with the same spirit — Patrick Henry is intirely antifederal and Grayson is warmly opposed to the present plan — The adoption of it is certainly doubtful in New York — Virginia — North Carolina & Rhode Island — this being the case I hope no pains will be wanting to secure a Majority in the next meeting of our Convention — I do assure, Sir, Our present situation appears truly alarming and I am more and more confirmed in an opinion I have long entertained that the tranquility of our Country is suspended solely on the great question of the day. —

I think M<sup>r</sup> Wingate informed your Excellency of the application of Kentucky to be set off as a seperate State and taken in to the union; which Virginia will accede to on condition of her being exonerated from a proportion of her federal obligations &c The affair has been once debated in Congress in Committee of the whole and postpon'd, since which it has not been taken up — It is an application that cannot, in the present State of affairs be complied with — but there is such a spirit of avulsion among the people of that Country they are so impatient and importunate as to make it a subject that requires, at this critical juncture, the most prudent management. — An other disagreeable affair between the United States and Virginia is now before Congress.—The Conditions on which the western lands were seeded by that State to the union were that Virginia should be allowed for the necessary and reasonable expences she had incurred in subduing the british posts, maintaining forts &c in that Country — The accounts to be adjusted and liquidated by a majority of three Commissioners. The Commissioners have been setting all winter in Virginia — two of whom thinking it unjust to allow Virginia her enormous claims and being about to report, — the Legislature (then setting) interposed — stopt their proceedings and made an appeal to Congress, in language corresponding to their Ideas of their own omnipotence — I think Congress will order the Commissioners to proceed & make report — and whether Virginia will then assume the rights of Judge & jury — with hold all monies & endeavor to reclaim the seeded territory, as she threatens, time only will discover — they seem disposed to avail themselves of the Spirit of the times to obtain unreasonable demands — In this, however, I believe they will be disappointed and should they hasten a general occursion It is hardly supposable that they will escape the evils attending it. —

I shall soon be under the necessity of drawing for the small sum of Money your Excellency was kind enough to mention in Mr Wingates letter — and hope provision will be made for paying so small a sum that I may not become liable to pay interest & Damages.

I take the liberty to enclose for your Excellencys perusal, the remarks of Aristides (Alia Judge Harrison an old friend who was Secretary to General Washington) on the new plan of government — and as I cannot procure an other, shall be obliged if you will please to lend it to the Treasurer. —

Having drawn my letter to some length I will not trespass further than to add the perfect Respect with which I have the honor to be

Your Excellencys Obedient and Very Humble Servant

MOUNT VERNON, 30 March, 1788.

My dear Sir,

Your favor of the 10th came duly to hand, and by Mr. Madison I had the pleasure to hear that you had recovered from a severe illness. On this event I sincerely congratulate you. The conduct of the State of New Hampshire has baffled all calculation, and has come extremely malapropos for a favorable decision on the proposed constitution in this State; for, be the real cause of the late adjournment what it may, the anti-federal party with us do not scruple to pronounce, that it was done to await the issue of this convention before it would decide, and add, that, if this State should reject it, all those who are to follow will do the same, and consequently that it cannot obtain, as there will be only eight States in favor of the measure.<sup>1</sup>

Had it not been for this untoward event, the opposition would have proved entirely unavailing in this State, notwithstanding the unfair (I might without much impropriety have made use of a harsher expression) conduct, which has been practised to rouse the fears and to inflame the minds of the people. What will be the result now, is not for me to say, as I have seen but a partial return of the delegates, and have little or no knowledge of the political sentiments of many of them. In the northern part of the State the current of sentiment, (I know,) is generally in favor of the new form. In the southern part, I am told, it is the reverse. Whilst in deciding the question, and here the idea of its becoming an impediment to its separation from this, operates thoroughly, whilst pains have not been wanting to inculcate a belief, that the general government proposed will, without scruple or delay, barter away their rights to navigation of the Mississippi. The postponement in New Hampshire will give strength and vigor to the <sup>1</sup> A majority of the New Hampshire convention was, contrary to the expectations of those who had followed her elections, opposed to the constitution. In a short time a small majority was in its favor, but the converts were bound by their instructions, and the convention adjourned to suffer them to consult their constituents. Bancroft asserts that the argument having the greatest weight was that as a small state, it would be prudent for New Hampshire to wait and see what the other states would do.

"Circumstanced as your convention was, an adjournment was certainly prudent, but it happened very malapropos for this State, because the concurrent information from that quarter would have justified the expectation of a unanimity in the convention; whereas an account so opposite to every former one, having arrived at the very time when the elections were carrying on here, gave an opportunity to the opponents of the proposed constitution to hold up to the people its not having been so generally approved of in other States as they had been taught to believe, and of consequence prepared them to receive other impressions unfriendly to the government and tending to influence their votes in favor of anti-federal characters." — Washington to John Langdon, 2 April, 1788.

opposition in New York, and possibly render Rhode Island more tardy than she would otherwise have been, if all the New England States had adopted the measure. Mrs. Washington joins in every good wish for Mrs. Knox, yourself & family, &c. I am, &c.

NEW YORK April 19th 1788.

Sir

Since I had the honor to write your Excellency, of the 21st march, the Convention in Pennsylvania seems to have subsided. The account from Virginia since their election of delegates for the State Convention are rather favorable; as both parties write that there is a small majority east of the mountains in favor of the new System and that the question will depend in a great measure on the delegates from Kentucky — The Antifederalists are endeavoring to excite jealousy in that quarter by giving it out that the first business of the new Congress will be to Ceede the Navigation of the Mississippi to Spain if they should not succeed in this mischief it is probable the question will obtain in their Convention. —

I beg leave to relate, for your Excellencys amusement, a little affair which for several days interrupted the tranquility of this City: — in which, however, there is nothing miraculous, though occasioned by raising the dead from their graves. — It seems the young Surgeons had made a practice for several months past of digging up the dead for the purpose of anatomical dissection — The people in time became uneasy and applied to the Mayor for redress — but being unable to obtain relief or put a stop to the practice in that way — on sunday last they surrounded the Hospital in a body and took several young men in the act of dissection, but gave them up to be confin'd in prison without much abuse — The next day the mob assembled ransack'd the houses of all most all the Physicians in town & destroyed their valuable Anatomical preparations to a great amount — The Governor endeavored to prevent them — but to no effect — he at length order out the Militia — but the number that turned out was so contemptable as to be disarmed and kick'd off the field — This so enraged the mob that they determined to force the Jail and cut off the young doctors hands they accordingly made the attack — broke down the yard — all the lower windows of the prison and made an entry on the lower floor — A second attempt was made to turn out the militia and about forty were collected with Arms — who, with a number of gentlemen, march'd up to the Jail amidst a shower of paving Stones and brick bats. — Mr Jay was very badly wounded in the forehead but will probably recover — The Governor — Baron Steuben and many others were slightly — the Poor old Baron has got two black eyes without the least consolation, as he execrates his own conduct for being in the action — they however recovered the Jail in time to save the lives of the prisoners — but were finally obliged to fire upon the mob — three of whom were killed and several wounded which put an end to the affray. —

Let me beg your Excellencys acceptance of the Address herewith enclosed — which I think contains some observation of general concern worthy of notice. —

I have the Honor to be with the most perfect Respect

P. S. I am just now honored with your Excellencys obliging favor of the 4th instant with its enclosures and beg leave to observe that as Col<sup>o</sup> Long, (who had the management of Money in the hands of Mr Wingate) declined taking an order on the Treasury. — I sent him my note of hand, payable twenty days after date, for £50, and requested the Loan officer to take it up; in hopes that he would receive money from the Treasury for the purpose. —

Sir

NEW YORK, April 23<sup>d</sup> 1788

I am honored with your favor of the third Instant, and am happy to find that your sentiments respecting the independency of Kentucky, as a State distinct from Virginia, coincide with those I had advanced in a committee of Congress. There is one Idea which your Excellency suggests, sufficient I think to evince that the present confederation does not provide for the erecting new states out of those already in the Union, namely, "because nine states are competent to determine any question before Congress," and upon this supposition a minority of the states in the union might be so circumstanced as to decide upon the most important matters.— This business of Kentucky has not been before Congress but once yet, and I believe there will be some very decent excuse found, for deferring the determination at present, without exciting the resentment of Kentucky.— That country is encreasing surprizingly. An Officer, who has lately come from fort Pitt, says that on the road within the distance of 150 miles, he met seven thousand people moving thither; and that Indian Corn was so plenty there, that it might be bought for nine pence <sup>per</sup> bushel.— Captain Hutchins, the Geographer of the united states, gives the most flattering account of the Western country. He says that there are more than one hundred millions of acres of excellent land there, and he is so confident that it may become the source of wealth, that he will stipulate with sufficient sureties to pay off 15 millions of Dollars of the domestic debt within five years by the sale of those lands, if Congress will now supply him with 8 thousand specie dollars for the expence of surveying &c. But so low is the state of the treasury that money cannot be spared.— And while we have the pleasure of reflecting on this western prospect, our European prospects are the most discouraging — Letters from Governor Jefferson — of Feb. last in France, inform Congress that it will be absolutely necessary to pay the Interest of our loans in Holland very shortly if we would preserve any degree of credit there; that the supplies, expected from the new loan negotiated there, have stopped. And he has proposed a very disadvantageous mode of relief to the consideration of Congress, without recommending it, only stating our situation. He says that there is a certain Dutch Gentleman, mentioning his name which I cannot recollect, who now holds 1,340,000 Dollars of our domestic securities, and he will engage to fill up our loans, which have been stipulated for in Holland to a considerable amount, and which if procured, would answer our present urgent demands; but it is upon this hard condition that Congress will allow him out of that money 189,000 Guilders in pay of the Interest due to him on those securities, he allowing 10 <sup>per</sup> cen<sup>t</sup> out of the interest for receiving his pay in Europe — A very extraordinary offer this! An answer is desired by Mr Jefferson within three months from the date of his letter in Feb. It is probable this sum asked for is of more value than the whole purchase of these securities. The sum this single European possesses is near one twentieth part of our domestic debt & it is said that there are large orders now from Europe for buying up our securities at their depreciated value. If this Dutchman could obtain the interest he proposes it is probable that it would increase their avidity to buy. A consideration not very favorable to the interest, if the peace of the united states.

We have for some time not had a Congress, owing to some of the members going home, but it is expected that others will be here in a few days. There is considerable business which will claim the attention of Congress as soon as the states assemble.

The Mob in New York have been quiet since the Militia dispersed them at the Goal. It is said that Governor Clinton disavows his ordering the Militia to fire, & says he had rather they should have been disarmed by the mob, than they should have killed his fellow citizens. Baron Steuben, who got sadly pelted by marching with those who were armed, says, damn such fellow citizens. — The Governor & Mayor are blamed by the populace, tho' they even degraded themselves in trying to please them. The Doctors are before the grand Jurors now for tryal and it remains an uncertainty what will be the issue. I have nothing very consequential to communicate to your Excellency, beg leave to assure your Excellency that with the highest sentiments of Esteem & respect, I have the honor to be your most obedient & humble Servant —

PAINÉ WINGATE

His Excellency President Sullivan

[The following is written on the wrapper of the above letter:]

This Letter is of peculiar interest. The three principal "Lobby-members" of the Convention, were Wingate, N. Gilman, & Tim° Walker.

Wingate, in this letter, states the fact, that New states could not be made from old ones under the confederation, — consequently there should be a change.

He then says we are badly in debt; — to get out — change the Constitution — and divide the state Kentucky & sell the public land —

You see that all the members did not vote, only 104 — The others Tim° Walker detained at his house, in this city, after he had given them a dinner, to prevent them from voting — or a number of them.

Wingate & Gilman were bound to drive Sullivan to support it.

NEW YORK, May 3<sup>d</sup> 1788 —

By the last post I received a letter from a friend of mine dated Baltimore April 26, informing me that the convention of Maryland had that day ratified the new constitution, — Yeas 63, nays 11 only — This intelligence, so agreeable to your Excellency's wishes, I have taken the first opportunity of communicating. — The state of New York have this week had their elections for delegates to their convention. In this city the votes are generally in favor of federalists, and it is said that they are so in other counties beyond expectation. It is now the opinion of those who are well acquainted with the sentiments of the people thro' the state that the probability is in favor of adopting the constitution here. The latest accounts from Virginia are, that from the returns of the delegates which are now generally made, a majority will be for the new government. South Carolina does not seem to be doubted. — Upon the whole the encouragement of having a peaceable & good government soon established is daily encreasing. I hope we shall not be disappointed. — Georgia have made a considerable cession to the united states of their Western lands upon condition that the new constitution shall be adopted & that they be allowed thirty thousand dollars for their expences in defending that territory during the late war.

We have not had a congress until yesterday for some time past, owing to two or three members going out of Town. Other members are expected on dayly. There have been no very material dispatches to Congress since I wrote to your Excellency last.

I have the honor to be with the most respectful esteem your Excellency's most obedient

NEW YORK June 12th 1788

Having this day received the first accounts from Virginia since the meeting of their Convention I do myself the honor to inform your Excellency that from all accounts there is the greatest probability of their acceding to the new System of Government. — A letter from Mr Madison dated “Richmond July 4th” contains the following observations — viz: “Mr Pendleton was put into the Chair without opposition. — yesterday it was unanimously agreed that no general or particular Question should be taken untill the whole had been debated clause by clause and the debates commenced to day. The Governor has renounced the Idea of previous amendments and will vote with us — He did it in a very handsom speech which has made a very favorable impression” other letters mention that a considerable majority was expected in favor of the question previous to the Governors declaration; which by that occurrence must be enlarged —

I believe there is now little or no reason to doubt the success of the question in North Carolina — the Honorable Mr Williamson has lately arrived from that State and assures me that he has not been able to inform himself from what quarter the opposition is to come and that he entertains no doubt of the ratification by their Convention.

With the greatest Respect I have the Honor to be

Your Excellency's Most Obedient Servant

* * * “I am sorry to find, not only from your intimations, but also from many of the returns in the late papers, that there should be so great a majority against the constitution in the convention of New York; and yet I can hardly conceive, from motives of policy and prudence, they will reject it absolutely, if either this State or New Hampshire should make the ninth in adopting it; as that measure, which gives efficacy to the system, must place any State that shall have actually refused its assent to the new Union in a very awkward and disagreeable predicament.

By a letter I have just received from a young gentleman<sup>1</sup> who lives with me, but who is now at home in New Hampshire, I am advised that there is every prospect that the constitution will be adopted in that State almost immediately upon the meeting of the

NEW YORK 29th June 1788.

I thank you for your kind favor of the 21st from Concord, announcing the highly important and satisfactory information of the adoption of the Constitution by New Hampshire

I hope and trust that the news of this great event may reach Richmond previously to the decision of the question in the Virginia convention. The last Letters from Richmond were dated on the 19th the main question would either be put on the 21st or the convention would then make a short adjournment (perhaps of a week) for the purpose of accommodating the legislature which had been called to assemble at the same place on the 23<sup>d</sup> instant — In either case it appears to be the opinion of the federalists and antifederalists that there would be a small majority for adopting the Constitution in the same manner as by Massachusetts & New Hampshire The express with the New Hampshire information will probably reach Richmond this day as it departed from this City on Wednesday last 1 oClock If the adjournment should have taken place it is probable the majority in favor of the Constitution will be encreased —

I cannot well state the politics of this state — It is sufficient to say they are opposed to the constitution without previous amendments — The Convention have been sitting since the 17th the majority greatly on the side of the Antifederalists

However as the noble conduct of your state has secured the Constitution it is possible the Anti's may think the ground changed and instead of stipulating for previous amendments accept the constitution on the terms you have — If this should be the case with which however I do not in the least flatter myself, the Anti's will take care to shew their power by some declaration that the acceptance is from expediency & not from conviction

Your friends attribute much of the success of the cause in your state to your unremitted exertions, and hope that y<sup>r</sup> Country will emmenently reward y<sup>r</sup> patriotism —

I am my dear Sir

affectionately y<sup>r</sup> humble Ser

DURHAM, July 7th 1788

Sir,

I am directed by the Society of the Cincinnati in New Hampshire to convey their congratulations to your Excellency, and to the Society in General, on the ratification of New Hampshire by a sufficient number of States, not only to establish it as a national form of government, but thereby to fix upon a permanent basis, those liberties, for which, under the direction and order of your Excellency, they have so cheerfully contended.

They now view with inexpressible pleasure the arrival of that happy period, when by the establishment of a truly republican, energetic and efficient national government, they and their posterity may enjoy those blessings, which as a freeman, they esteem an ample reward for all the toils and dangers, which they experienced in the course of a long and perilous war.

Sir

It is with great personal satisfaction, I receive the congratulations of the Society of Cincinnati in New Hampshire, on the present state of our public affairs.

I shall take care to convey the Instrument expressive of their sentiments to the Secretary of the General Meeting, that, being deposited in the archives, the purport may be made known accordingly.

The prevalence of so good dispositions from one extremity of the Continent to the other (with few exceptions) seems indeed to afford a subject of mutual felicitations to all who delight in their country's prosperity. But the idea, that my former gallant associates in the field are now about to receive, in a good national government, some compensation for the toils and dangers which they have experienced in the course of a long & perilous war, is particularly consolatory to me.

I entreat that the members of your State Society will believe that I interest myself much in their prosperity; and that you will accept the professions of sincere regard & esteem; with which

I have the honor to be Sir

[Farmer's State Papers, Vol. 11, p. 171.]

NEW YORK, July 26, 1788

Sir

I shall do myself the honor of addressing this letter to your Excellency, conceiving it proper at all times to give such information, as I shall suppose your Excellency would wish to receive, or may concern the interest of the State. The Secretary of Congress, no doubt, regularly and seasonably transmits to New Hampshire such acts and resolves of that body as may particularly concern them. Among those acts is one, prolonging the time for lodging the claims of the several states against the united States with the proper commissioner. These claims will comprehend such as any state shall judge to be founded in equity, altho' they are not sanctioned by resolves of Congress or supported by the usual vouchers. And after they are stated, three commissioners hereafter to be appointed will have full power to examine into & admit or reject those of this description as they shall think right and just. This is a most important trust, in which all the states are interested, and some very deeply. Virginia, it is said, have claims of this kind to a very great amount, and Massachusetts not inconsiderable. Among the rest is the Penobscot expedition. I do not know how New Hampshire is circumstanced; but being apprised of the measure it is proper to endeavor to be on an equitable footing with the other states. We had some concern in the Penobscot affair, and very probably the state incurred other expences for the common defence and welfare, which ought to be adjusted conformably to the general principles established for the other states.

Among other transactions of Congress your Excellency will observe the ratifying of the loan of a million of Guilders made last spring by Mr Adams in Holland. The state of our finances in this country have hitherto been such, that there was no possibility of making payment in Europe for the interest of our loans, or for such parts of the capital as by installment become due there. It was of importance, especially at this juncture, to preserve our credit by a punctual fulfilment of our engagements. The new Government must require some time to form the regulations & bring forth the expected resources. Many disadvantages would attend a repeated application to the money lenders for smaller sums and when pressed with immediate necessity. From these and other good considerations Mr Adams & Mr Jefferson were both of opinion that it would be much for the interest of the united states to secure this needed resource to enable us to pay the demands upon us in Europe to the year 1790 inclusively by which time it is hoped that our internal resources will be sufficient to supply our wants without the burden of foreign loans. Besides, altho' the contract is made for a certain sum, yet it is not likely that the loans will be filled up any faster than the monies shall become due there, so that in effect it will be no more than to put upon Interest again that interest and those Instalments which shall from time to time become due and paying some other necessary expences which arise in Europe. I confess that I am extremely averse to the increase of our foreign loans, and nothing but necessity and our peculiar situation at this time would have induced me to consent thereto. So fully impressed was Congress with a sense of the present expediency that there was but one dissenting voice. Congress have omitted making the necessary arrangements for putting the new Government into effect, out of delicacy to the situation of New York, whose decision upon the proposed constitution has been expected daily for some time. I have now the pleasure of congratulating your Excellency upon their adoption which we have just received the news of. The particulars are not yet come to hand, only that there was a majority of five in favor of an unconditional ratification. The new congress cannot meet so early as most expected and many wished for, owing to the situation of some of the Southern states. I hope however that there will be no necessity of Congress meeting under the present confederation after November next. We have now all the states represented in congress and considerable business which requires the attention of that body, but expect that as soon as the principal matters are dispatched the delegates will many of them return home. Among that number I shall be glad to be one, provided that nothing special should require my continuance here and my return shall have your Excellency consent. I have the honor to be your Excellencys most obedient & humble Servant

NEW YORK September 5th 1788

Sir

I have to acknowledge the honor of your Excellencys obliging favor of the 25th Ultimo, and it is with real regret that I am again constrained to inform you that the ordinance for the organization of the new government remains incomplete; owing to the absence of the delegates of Rhode Island and to a want of that spirit of accommodation which has hitherto confessedly marked the conduct of New Hampshire on this subject.—The ordinance has once been completed in all its parts and when the final question was about to be taken the delegates of Rhode Island left the Hall & the city.—

The time for choosing electors, of their meeting and the assembling of the new Congress was fixed at later periods than could meet the wishes of the Eastern States in order to accommodate the southern.

The question on the place for commencing proceedings under the new Government was first taken for Philadelphia—when the Delegates of New Hampshire and Connecticut (conceiving to be the wish of the Southern States, and being actuated by that spirit of accommodation & conciliation which it is their ardent desire to see operating in the general government of the States, and on which our national prosperity so greatly depends) gave their assent.—But to their surprize the Question was lost by the negative of South Carolina and the division of Delaware and Georgia among the Southern States.—The Question was afterwards taken for New York in a full representation of all the States and carried, south Carolina voting in the affirmative &

Georgia divided—but as the final question did not obtain, owing to the circumstances above related, an attempt has since been made to send out the ordinance without inserting the place leaving it for the new Congress to assemble when the old Congress should be sitting at the time, but without success.— Thus has the business past on from day to day waiting the return of the Delegates from Rhode Island—

As it seems to be the general opinion that New York or Philadelphia must be the place for the first Congress to assemble in and as seven States and an half are in favor of the former and half the delegation of Delaware, in addition pointedly opposed to the latter it appears to be the effect of unwarrantable obstinacy that the minority will not concede the point in question without further delay.—

I hope however that we shall be able to finish this business within a few days when I shall do myself the honor to give your Excellency the earliest notice—

With the highest Respect I have the Honor to be Your Excellencys Very Obedient and Humble Servant

I acknowledge the honor of receiving your Excellency's favor of the 11th ult<sup>o</sup>, also yours of the 2<sup>d</sup> instant to M<sup>r</sup> Gilman and to me, enclosing our Commissions for the ensuing year—I thank your Excellency for your obliging attention in sending on our commissions, and M<sup>r</sup> Gilman's acknowledgments, at his desire, are joyned with mine; but I hope and expect not to have occasion for my commission. I think it likely that the states will not be generally represented in Congress after November next, and unless any emergency should make it necessary for the delegates to attend, I conceive that it will be judged most expedient to let what little business may be left, pass over to the new government. Your Excellency observes that you do not recollect any business of the state that will require my attendance after the general business is compleated, and that I must use my own judgment in determining when to return home. My wish is to return as soon as may be without neglect of my trust, and as several of the delegates from other states are already gone, and others will probably soon follow, and as there does not appear to be any matters of great consequence to be decided before the end of the present year, except such as may be dispatched in a few days, I shall conformably to my inclination, and I believe the interest of the state, leave this city for home on the last of next week, unless something unexpected should prevent. I am happy to have your Excellency's approbation respecting the late loan.

I do most sincerely joyn in your congratulations on the general adoption of the new constitution. Altho' North Carolina, being mislead by the information received from this state, and not discovering their mistake until too late, did not ratify; yet all accounts from that state agree, that they will as soon as may be take the matter into consideration again and adopt, as they would doubtless have done had they heard from New York convention a day or two sooner. A delegate in Congress lately from Rhode Island, and who has heretofore been antifederal, says that state is now in a fair way of calling a convention, and he is of opinion that they will ratify. So that we may hope once more to see a union of the thirteen states, and I trust in a government that may make us a great and happy nation.

My Colleague has informed your Excellency of the reasons which actuated our conduct in the late endeavours to organize the new government. They were such as we supposed ought to influence us, and would vindicate us from any blame in the past delay. Nothing has been further attempted in this business since M<sup>r</sup> Gilman wrote, but we have reason to think it will be compleated in a few days. I do not imagine that the delay as yet has put off the time when the operation of the new government would commence, or has been injurious, further than a waste of time in Congress, and keeping the public in a painful suspense, and some little irritation of the parties. These it is true, tho' I think they will be attended with no very disagreeable consequences, are evils which I wish had been avoided, and that the government had commenced with a perfect harmony of sentiment. Had all parties been as disinterested as the delegates of New Hampshire in this affair it might have been the case; but the rivalship of Philadelphia and New York would not admit of it.

The Minister of the united Netherlands has lately been recalled, & taken leave of Congress. The united states of America have upon this Occasion received fresh assurances of friendship from the States General, but are not informed of the reasons of the recall of the minister. It is easily conjectured however that it was because he was not in the interest of the Prince of Orange. Congress has this week elected Gen<sup>l</sup> Irvine of Pennsylvania and the Hon. John T Gilman Esq. of New Hampshire commissioners for settling the accounts of the several states agreeably to the Ordinance of May 7, 1787. The third who is to be from the Southward is not yet chosen. We have no late European news and I have nothing else material to write. I have the honor to be with great respect your Excellency's most obedient and humble Servant

NEW YORK September 13th 1788

Sir

I do myself the honor to transmit herewith, an ordinance of Congress for putting in motion the new System of government:— and have the pleasure to observe, that, although a difference in sentiment, respecting the place of meeting has been productive of animated debates and has occasioned some delay yet it finally passed without a dissentient voice or the least apparent animosity.— This day has also compleated the election of the Commissioners for settling the national accounts agreeably to the ordinance of May 1787.— The Board consists of General William Irvine of Pennsylvania— M<sup>r</sup> J. T. Gilman of New Hampshire and M<sup>r</sup> Abraham Baldwin of Georgia.

Enclosed also are two resolutions of the Convention of North Carolina transmitted to Congress by their President—one of which shews the sense in which that body consider their act respecting the proposed plan of government and their determination to adhere to the Union.—

My dear Sir,

Passing through this Town, on my return to Boston from Penobscot where I have been for the last two months I flattered myself with the hope of an interview with you here — although I am unhappy at my disappointment yet I cannot be so near to you without dropping you a line. Were I not in a great hurry I should certainly have paid you a visit at your seat — But my long absence, and pressing calls for my return both public and private will prevent my experiencing the pleasure of seeing you at this time.

I sincerely hope that the proposed government will have the effect, to point out, and secure to us in a better manner than hitherto the blessings of our hard earned independence. The prospect is fair, and arguing from the good sense of the majority of the people in accepting the constitution, we may expect if it should want to be better braced that it may be peaceably effected —

I shall be happy in receiving a line of recognition from you directed to me at New York. I shall expect to remain at Boston a short time, previously to my setting out southward —

I am Dear Sir with sentiments of real friendship

MOUNT VERNON, 31st January 1789.

My dear Sir,

I should have considered my not writing; to you since my arrival here, in September last, as an unpardonable neglect, if it had not been justified by the unfavourable complexion of publick affairs, in this state so far as they respected the new Government. As this subject would have course; have occupied a very considerable part of my letters; I thought it best to postpone writing altogether; till we were fully ascertained of the steps taken here, to carry the proposed system into execution. Knowing from every information, that whatever accounts you might receive, through the channel of the publick papers, or otherwise, could not well represent matters in a more gloomy state, than they appeared to be here, and as accounts coming through that medium may be controverted with a better grace, than those which come from an individual, who has a pretty good opportunity of knowing, the true situation of publick affairs. I did not wish to impress them by the concurrence of a private letter, nor commit myself to a falsehood by contradicting them. I hope therefore my silence will be excusable: Since the Assembly of this state have finished all matters relative to the Government, so far as depended upon them, the aspect of these affairs have assumed a more settled form, and will enable a person to speak with some degree of certainty upon them.

Mr Henry the leader of the opposition in this State, finding himself beaten off the ground by fair argument in the state convention, and out-numbered upon the important question, collected his whole strength, and pointed his whole force against the Government in the Assembly.—He here met with but a feeble opposition, for those great characters, who had supported the system in the convention were not members of the Assembly — There was not now a single speaker who could cope with him.—He led on his almost unresisted phalanx and planted the standard of hostility upon the very battlements of federalism.—

In plain English, he ruled a majority of the Assembly and his edicts were registered by that body with less opposition than those of the Grand Monarque have met with from his Parliaments.—He chose the two senators, R. H. Lee & Col Grayson, both of whom had declared themselves opposed to the Government. He divided the state into districts, obliging every district to chuse one representative who should be an inhabitant of that district; taking care to arrange matters so as to have the County of which Mr. Madison is an inhabitant thrown into a district of which a majority were supposed to be unfriendly to the Government, & by that means exclude him from the Representative body in Congress. He wrote the answer to Governor Clinton's letter, and likewise the circular letter to the Executives of the severai states, (one of which I presume your excellency has received before this time) requestion that the states might unite, in desiring Congress to call another General Convention &c &c. And after he had setteled everything relative to the Government wholly (I suppose) to his satisfaction, he mounted his horse & rode home, leaving the little business of the state to be done by anybody, who chose to give themselves the trouble of attending to

it. This I believe, is a pretty fair state of facts, so far as they relate to the legislature. — One thing however should be remarked — viz that the doings of the Assembly upon the Government have been represented out of the state, as their almost unanimous deed — this is not the case there was a respectable minority in point of numbers, and in many other views they would be considered by all good men, as far outweighing their opponents, & the voice of the people, in the choice of Electors, since the Assembly have risen, clearly shews that their sentiments were not justly represented in that body, for they have made choice of Gentlemen for that business of whom a great majority were warm & decided supporters of the Government. — But the fullest proof of the disposition of the people will be given in their choice of Representatives to Congress, which will take place on Monday next, & of these 6 at least will be federal Characters — this the opposite party themselves acknowledge & the more sanguine in favor of the Government speak with confidence of 7 or 8 out of ten, that will be warm supporters of the System — There can be but little doubt of Mr Madison's Election, for notwithstanding their unwearied efforts to exclude him from any share in Government by the arrangement of the district & every other obstacle, that could be suggested his personal appearance in the district, & the exertions of his friends, have so far turned the current in his favor, that they chose a decided federalist, as an elector in spite of every opposition — If he should be left out, not only this state, but the whole Continent will sustain a considerable loss by being deprived of his superior abilities Mr Rich<sup>d</sup> H Lee has declared that in his opinion the Government ought to have a fair trial in its present form & that he shall be opposed to any premature amendments — We were pleased to see your name as a Senator from New Hampshire. Judge Bartlett I presume is attached to the Government, which will give New Hampshire a federal voice in one branch of Congress — tho it is a matter of concern to see, by the late papers, that there was no prospect of a federal representative from that state. Maryland has chosen six characters who are decided friends to the Government to represent her in Congress & from the choices already made, & the general disposition of the people through the states there can be no doubt but a very decided majority of the lower house in Congress, will be supporters of the system in its present form till experience points out, such amendments as are necessary. We have not yet rec'd any acc'ts from South Carolina respecting the choice of Senators &

Representatives in that State. Your good friend Col, Mason has not given up his opposition, & I dare say will not so long as he is actuated by those very liberal principles which led him to oppose the system — It is peculiarly pleasing to every person who is interested in the welfare of this Country to observe the change that is taking place in private as well as publick economy — Industry and frugality are taking the lead among those individuals who, but a very little time since, were remarkable for their idleness & extravagance

The spirit begins to prevail strongly in Virginia where the opposite conduct was always so notorious — A concurrence of circumstances seems to mark this period, as the most favorable of any that ever America has experienced for establishing an energetic & liberal government: — & much very much will depend upon the characters who are to put the grand machine of federal Government in motion — its first impressions will be strongest — & from a knowledge & experience of those who are called upon to commence its operations there cannot be a doubt of their being extremely favorable — The General desires me to present his best compliments to you, & his warmest wishes for your health & welfare.

You will please to make my best respects acceptable to your good Lady & Miss Eliza — & inform the latter that I had several mocking birds taken last fall with an intention of sending them to her — but the severity of the weather at Christmas destroyed them. Indeed it is very rare that they can be kept thro' the winter except in the southern parts of the state. Our Red Birds are more hardy & as we have several very fine ones, I shall send her one by the first conveyance. My respects & best wishes always attend our friends.

I am my dear sir with every sentiment of respect & attachment
Your sincere friend & very H'ble serv't

MOUNT VERNON April 14 1789

In obedience to the orders I received on the 6th of this month. I left New York the next day & proceeded with unremitting diligence as fast as storm, tempest & bad roads would permit arrived at this place this morning. I found the general at home & after common compliment & salutation took an early opportunity to address him as follows. Sir,

The president of the Senate chosen for the special occasion having opened & counted the votes of the Election in the presence of the Senate & house of Representatives, I was honored with the commands of the Senate to wait upon your excellency with the information of your being elected to the office of President of the United States of America. This commission was intrusted to me on account of my long being in the confidence of the late Congress & charged with the duties of one of the principal civil departments of government. I have now sir to inform you that the proofs you have given of your patriotism and of your readiness to sacrifice domestic separation & private enjoyments to preserve the liberty & promote the happiness of your country did not permit the two houses to harbour a doubt of your undertaking this great this important office to which you are called not only by the unanimous vote of the electors, but by the voice of America, I have it therefore in command to accompany you to New York where the Senate & house of Representatives are convened for the dispatch of public business. In executing this part of the commission where personal gratification coincides with duty I shall wait your time and be wholly governed by your convenience. I then deliver your dispatch To this the President made a short reply & concluded informing me that he would be ready to set out the day after to morrow and from the arrangements he has made in his mind of the daily stages it may be 6 or 7 days from that time before he reaches New York. With my dutiful respect to this Senate I have the honor to to be.
